

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

3 1761 01742482 1

The Historical syntax of the atonic personal pronouns
in Italian

PC
1261
J7
1898
c. 1
ROBA

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

THE HISTORICAL SYNTAX

OF THE

ATONIC PERSONAL PRONOUNS

IN ITALIAN.

DISSERTATION

Presented to the Board of University Studies of the Johns Hopkins University for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

BY

OLIVER MARTIN JOHNSTON.

TORONTO:

ROWSELL & HUTCHISON, 74 AND 76 KING STREET EAST.

1898.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

3 1761 01566505 2

THE HISTORICAL SYNTAX
OF THE
ATONIC PERSONAL PRONOUNS
IN ITALIAN.

DISSERTATION

Presented to the Board of University Studies of the Johns Hopkins University for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

BY
OLIVER MARTIN JOHNSTON.

TORONTO:
ROWSSELL & HUTCHISON, 74 AND 76 KING STREET EAST.
1898.

TO
MY DEAR PARENTS, TO WHOSE CONSTANT ENCOURAGEMENT
I AM GREATLY INDEBTED FOR WHAT I MAY HAVE ACCOMPLISHED IN MY STUDIES, THIS MONOGRAPH IS AFFECTIONATELY DEDICATED.-

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
INTRODUCTION	xi-xii
I.—CHAPTER I.—Mixing of Tonic and Atonic Forms.....	1-27
A.—Examples of irregular occurrences in the texts examined	1-9
1.—Tonic forms in atonic position ..	1-7
a.—Single tonic pronouns in proclitic position ..	1-2
b.—Single tonic forms in enclitic position; attach- ed to the verb	3
c.—Single tonic forms in enclitic position; not attached to the verb.....	3-4
d.—Double forms in proclitic position, in which the tonic vowel of the second pronoun has been carried to the first pronoun	4-6
e.—Double forms in enclitic position, in which the tonic vowel of the second pronoun has been carried to the first pronoun	6-7
2.—Atonic forms in tonic position	8
3.—Union of two atonic forms in combinations where the second pronoun is usually tonic	8-9
a.—In proclitic position	8-9
b.—In enclitic position.....	9
B.—Résumé	9-12
1.—Tonic pronouns in atonic position	9-10
a.—Single tonics in proclitic position	9-10
b.—Single tonics in enclitic position.....	10-11
aa.—Attached to the verb	10
bb.—Not attached to the verb	10-11
2.—Atonic forms in tonic position	11
3.—Double forms, in which the first is generally written as a tonic, but sometimes both are atonic ..	11-12
a.—In proclitic position	11
b.—In enclitic position.....	12
C.—Discussion of tonic pronouns in atonic position.....	12-24
1.—In proclitic position	13-15
a.— me, te, se —remnants of the Latin accusative.	13-15
b.— el for il , a dialectical form	15

	PAGE
2.— me and te in enclitic position.....	15-17
a. —Attached to the verb	15-16
b. — me and te following immediately after the verb and not attached	17
3.—Tonic forms that have a similar explanation in pro- clitic and enclitic position	17-24
a. — ne , the first person plural	17-18
b. — noi , voi , lui , lei , loro	19-20
c. — me lo , etc. ; te lo , etc. ; se lo , etc. ; me ne , te ne , se ne ; glielo , etc. ; gliene	20-22
d. —The second pronoun in these combinations (no. c) is tonic.... ..	23-24
D. —Discussion of atonic forms in tonic position	24-25
1.—Introduced through dialectical influence	24-25
E. —Extent of the mixing of tonic and atonic forms	25
F. —Time of disappearance	25-26
CONCLUSIONS	26-27
II.—CHAPTER II.—Uses of Atonic Forms in Atonic Position ..	28-60
A. —Examples of regular occurrences in texts examined ..	28-39
1.—General constructions	28-31
a. —Single proclitics	28-29
aa. —Before finite verbs	28-29
bb. —Before infinitives	29
b. —Single enclitics	30
aa. —Attached to infinitives	30
bb. —Attached to imperatives.....	30
c. —Constructions common to proclitic and enclitic position	30-31
2.—Special constructions	31-39
a. —Single proclitics	31-35
b. —Single enclitics with finite verbs	35-36
c. —Enclitics with che , dietro , addosso , dreto ...	36-37
d. —Constructions common to proclitic and encli- tic position	37-38
e. —Double atonics, in which the direct precedes the indirect object in combinations where mi , ti , ci , vi stand next to lo , etc., la , etc..	38-39
B. —Résumé	39-43
a. —Single proclitics	39-41
b. —Single enclitics	41-42
c. —Constructions common to proclitic and encli- tic position	42
d. —Pronouns of address	42-43
e. —Double atonics, in which the direct precedes the indirect object	43

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

vii

	PAGE
C.—Discussion of single atonics	43-57
1.—In proclitic position	43-45
a.—Nominatives i' , i , no' , vo' , e' , gli , la , l' , (= la), le	43-45
b.—Atonic pronouns in hiatus	45
2.—In enclitic position	45-46
a.—Origin of mi , ti , si	45-46
3.—Constructions common to proclitic and enclitic posi- tion (or partly proclitic and partly enclitic) .	46-57
a.—Mixing of gender, number, and person	46-48
aa.—Masculine for feminine	46-47
bb.—Singular for plural	47
cc.— si (= ci)	47-48
b.—Uses of il , 'l , and lo before the verb	48-49
c.—Position of atonic pronouns with finite verbs	49-50
d.—Position of atonic pronouns with infinitives..	50-51
aa.—Infinitives not dependent upon verbs.	50
bb.—Infinitives depending on verbs	51
e.—Reflexives	51-52
f.—Dative constructions	52-54
aa.—Dative with verbs	52-53
bb.—Indirect object after adjectives.....	53
cc.—Dative of the possessor	53
dd.—Possessive strengthened by the dative	53-54
ee.—Dative of the agent.....	54
g.—Atonic pronouns of address.....	54-57
D.—Discussion of double atonics	57-58
1.—Arrangement.....	57-58
CONCLUSIONS	58-60
BIBLIOGRAPHY	61-66

SYNTACTICAL HISTORY
OF THE
ATONIC PERSONAL PRONOUNS
IN ITALIAN

FROM THE MIDDLE OF THE THIRTEENTH TO THE END OF
THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

INTRODUCTION.

The atonic forms existing in the texts examined are:—

SINGULAR.

	SUBJECT.	DIRECT OBJECT.	INDIRECT OBJECT.
1st Person	i', i.	mi, m'.	mi, m'.
2nd Person		ti, t'.	ti, t'.
3rd Per. m.	e', gli.	il, 'l, lo, l'.	gli, gl', li, i.
3rd Per. fem. . .	la, l'.	la, l'.	le, gli.
Reflexives		si, s'.	si, s'.

PLURAL.

1st Person	no'.	ci, c'.	ci, c'.
2nd Person	vo'.	vi, v'.	vi, v'.
3rd Per. m.	e', gli.	gli ¹ , li, i.
3rd Per. fem. . .	le.	le.	le.
Reflexives		si, s'.	si, s'.

The table given above represents the general usage in the texts consulted; however, in a historical examination of proclitics and enclitics in Italian (in addition to the regular atonic constructions), numerous examples are found of the corresponding tonic pronouns that occur in unaccented position and which are governed as direct and indirect objects of verbs, just as in the case of atonics. Similar researches will also show that atonic mi and ti were occasionally adopted in tonic position.

This variance in usage makes it necessary, first of all, that a full collection of the irregularities mentioned be made, and explanations be offered for the confusion and final separation of tonic and atonic forms, preparatory to a treatment of the special constructions of the unaccented pronouns, which constructions will then unfold themselves naturally in the light of Historical Grammar.

¹ The tonic form loro early supplanted the plurals gli, li, le, and is now employed regularly in conjunctive position.

Following the atonic forms, already indicated (cf. p. xi), through the texts examined for the present study, it will be noted that the pronouns given were not all employed to the same extent by the authors of the various periods, and many rules will be noted of grammatical structure widely different from those existing in Modern Italian. The application of this historical method to the syntactical point in question not only brings to knowledge constructions not hitherto mentioned by Italian grammarians, but classifies all the material found, determines the relative frequency of irregular and special uses by actual count, and, at the same time, not only renders possible rational explanations of the diverse syntactical phenomena, through a comparison of the individual authors of the different epochs of the Italian itself, but, going behind the oldest Italian monuments, enables one to seek the origin of any given Italian construction in the Latin, wherever it is possible to identify the Italian representative with the Latin original.

Thus, the Syntactical History of the atonic personal pronouns may be divided into two parts.

In the first chapter the mixing of the accented and unaccented forms will be noted, and suggestions and explanations for such confusions will be attempted. In the second chapter will be traced the regular uses of proclitics and enclitics, with special reference to the origin and growth of constructions as influenced by individual authors.

I now wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to Professor F. J. A. Davidson, of Leland Stanford Jr. University, for kindly reading the proofs of my dissertation.

CHAPTER I.

MIXING OF TONIC AND ATONIC FORMS.

THE atonic personal pronouns are the only ones employed as direct and indirect object of a verb and always stand next to the verb upon which they throw their accent, either leaning forward as proclitics or casting their accent back as enclitics¹. Hence, the occurrence of any pronouns in conjunctive position, except the list of atonics already given (cf. p. xi.), will be treated as an abnormal use of tonic for atonic forms; in like manner the use of atonic forms after prepositions, or apart from the verb, will be considered as an equal encroachment of atonic upon the domain of tonic pronouns. With the position of the accented and unaccented Italian pronouns thus defined, irregularities arising from a crossing of the two will be easily recognized, tested and eliminated.

My plan is to mention each construction separately. After a full list of examples has been given, a résumé will follow, indicating the number of times a given phenomenon is found in each author examined.

A.—Examples of irregular occurrences in texts examined.

1.—Tonic forms in atonic position.

a.—Single tonic pronouns in proclitic position.

el = il: B², p. 145.

C'ormai le donne ch'el vedranno morto Ciascuna più pietanza avranno in core.

me = mi: O, Purg. XXI, 18,

Poi cominciò: nel beato concilio

Ti ponga in pace la verace corte,

Che me rilega nell'eterno esilio;

DD, p. 3,

E poi me disse: guarda el Lupatello.

¹ For the occasional occurrence of the shortened nominatives i', i, no', vo', e', gli, la, l', le as proclitics in the texts examined compare p. 45.

² For the use of the letters A, B, C, etc., in giving reference to the authors, compare p. 61.

noi = ci : U, 8, 3, noi ha lasciati ;

G, p. 28,
 tredici staia e mezzo di o grano o di farina,
 qual noi piacesse.

ne = ci : QQ, Atto 3, Sc. 4, Perchè, crudo destino,
Ne disunisci tu, s'Amor ne stringe ;

U, 1, 1,
 il mandarlo fuori di casa così infermo ne sarebbe gran biasmo.

te = ti : U, 8, 7, te ha fatto agghiacciare ;

W¹, kiii6,
 io te parlo.

vai = vi : P, I, 231,
 Così me, Donna, il voi veder, felice
 Fa in questo breve, e frale viver mio ;
 U, 6, 10,
 Se voi piace.

se = si : L, p. 205.
 el tesoro diroma si era consumato en la guerra danibal ke non se trova da potere pagare li cavalieri.

lui = lo : O, Inf. XXVI, 78,
 In questa forma lui parlare audivi.

lei = la : P, I, 118,
 E lei vid'io ferita in mezzo 'l core ;

U, 2, 8,
lei hebbero molto cara.

*loro*² = gli, li, le : U, 2, 6, il suo fiero proponimento loro aperse ;

LL, I, 42,
 E come mi fu tolta, lor narrai.

¹ In looking for this reference it will be necessary to count six pages forward from folio kiii, as this system is observed in all editions divided according to folios.

² Cf. footnote, p. xi.

b.—Single tonic forms in enclitic position ; attached to the verb.

me in rhyme : P, I, 172,

E l'angelico canto, e le parole
Col dolce spirto, ond'io non posso aitar*me*,
Son l'aura, innanzi a cui mia vita fugge ;

P, I, 236,

L'aura serena, che fra verdi fronde
Mormorando a ferir nel volto viem*me*,
Fammi risavvenir quand 'Amor diem*me*
Le prime piaghe sì dolci e profonde.

me not in rhyme : P, II, 86,

E però mi son mosso a pregar morte,
Che mi tolla di qui per far*me* lieto.

*ne*¹ = ci : O, Inf. XIII, 87-89,

Spirito incarcerato, ancor ti piaccia
Di dir*ne* come l'anima si lega
In questi nocchi ; din*ne*, se tu puoi, Se alcuna mai da tai membra si spiega.

get example

te not in rhyme : DD, p. 181,

Non consentir a far un tal micidio,
Che sai ch'io t'amo assai piu che tu stessa,
Per gloriarte fatto un altro Ovidio.

c.—Single tonic forms in enclitic position ; not attached to the verb.

me = mi : U, 5, 4,

volesse Iddio, che tu non facessi piu morir me ;

O, Inf. XXIII, 91,

Poi disser me, ecc.

get example

noi = ci : O, Inf. V, 106,

Amor condusse noi ad una morte.

te = ti : I, p. 59,

L'altrui giustizia non liberà te.

voi = vi : A, p. 95 V,

Anchora d'amar voi non fui sì acceso.

lui = lo : O, Inf. XIV, 71,

Ma, come io dissi lui, li suoi dispetti
Sono al suo petto assai debiti fregi.

get example

¹ Cf. O, Inf. V, 29 ; Purg. V, 30.

lei = la : O, Inf. XXI, 19,

Io vedea lei, ma non vedea in essa
Ma' che le bolle che il bollor levava ;

U, 2, 8,

egli imaginava lei di bassa condition.

loro = gli, li, le : II, I, 144,

Mè so quanto il restar fusse lor caro ;

BBB, p. 72,

non parendo loro cosa conveniente che,
a quell'ora, si trattenesse più a lungo.

d.—Double forms in proclitic position in which the tonic vowel of the second pronoun has been carried to the first pronoun.

me lo = m'elo : V. I, 30,

me lo mostra ;

II, II, 168,

Rinaldo me lo viene a disturbare.

me la = m'ela : P, II, 119,

Ben me la diè, ma tosto la ritalse ;

V. I, 29,

Che me la manda chiedendo.

me ne = m'ene : V. I, 22,

Cristo me ne guardi.

ce lo = c'elo : Z, nov. 59,

Che ce lo dia.

ce la = c'ela : NN, p. 189, tale è la nostra vita, quale la natura ce la dece essere poscia che noi venuti ci siamo ;

NN, p. 101,

se non che quelle cose, che la fortuna ci dà, esso dolci e soavi ce le fa essere.

ce ne = c'ene : J, p. 19,

credemo bene ch'elli ce ne farà a piacere ;

J, p. 21,

giammái ne ce ne miraremo drieto.

te lo = t'elo : V, I, 9,

io te lo dirò ;

II, II, 32,

Sai ch'altra volta te lo volsi dire.

ms. gettando

te la = t'ela : V, I, 12, io te la insegnerò ;

II, I, 26,

Io te la gratterò, s'il ti bisogna.

te ne = t'ene : V, I, 32,
io te ne voglio dire ;

II, I, 30,

e'n tulto te ne voglio confortare.

ve lo = v'elo : V, I, 15,
io ve lo dirò ;

II, I, 116,

ve lo conterò.

ve la = v'ela : UU, I, 26, ve l' ha rubata.

ve ne = v'ene : J, p. 60, noi non ve ne scrivaremo mai piue ;

V, I, 15,

Pur che ve ne piaccia.

se lo = s'elo : K, p. 203, ma elli se lo sentia si presso,
che non se ne osava partire ;

Y, p. 135,

se li gittò a' piedi.

se la = s'ela : H, p. 130,
di che ognuno se la levò ;

Y, nov. 9,

se la pregava.

se ne = s'ene : BBB, p. 18,
*se n'*andò.

glielo : V, I, 245,
glielo chiese ;

BBB, p. 41,

glielo raccomandava.

gliela : V, I, 180,
tu gliela donerai ;

V, I, 92,

glie la leva.

gliene : V, I, 88,

Giannetto glie ne volle dare venti mila ;

BBB, p. 32,

certo nessun uomo di giudizio

gliene avrette dato il parere.

e.—Double forms in enclitic position in which the tonic vowel of the second pronoun has been carried to the first pronoun, but both forms being attached to the verb the accent is last.

¹*me lo* = m'elo : V, I, 30,

convien*melo* vedere ;

BBB, p. 33,

raccontat*emelo* un poco.

me la = m'ela : LL, V, 139,

levarm*ela* ;

BBB, p. 73,

datem*ele* ora.

me ne = m'ene : V, I, 55,

menò*mene* ;

BBB, p. 154,

impicciar*mene*.

ce la = c'ela : DDD, p. 112, discorriam*ocela* fra noi.

ce ne = c'ene : NN, p. 252,

pura contentezza nel sonno medesimo procacciamo, e a pascere incomincian*cene*

così sognando.

te lo = t'elo : V, I, 58,

questo è un dire, tient*elo* sempre mai ;

II, IV, 223,

A dirt*elo* ad un tratto, io nol vo' fare.

te la = t'ela : BBB, p. 209, dirt*ela*.

te ne = t'ene : KK, II, 230, tornart*ene* ;

KK, II, 263,

pigliat*ene*.

¹ me lo, me la, etc., are unaccented when joined to the verb, but are treated under the head of tonics, because their form is the same as the corresponding combinations before the verb where the second pronoun is tonic.

ve lo = v'elo : K, p. 104, diròvvelo assai brevemente ;

BBB, p. 308,
dovevo dirvelo.

ve la = v'ela : BBB, p. 110, lasciandovela.

ve ne = v'ene : BBB, p. 72, ma anche voi avevate promesso di non fare scandoli di remettervene al padre ;
BBB, p. 60,
non ho più bisogno di riguardi a parlarvene.

se lo = s'elo : Y, nov. 166, trovandoselo ;
BBB, p. 67,
presentandosegli davanti i due sposi.

se la = s'ela : DDD, p. 14,
dunque, a che serve pigliarsela a cuore ?
BBB, p. 384,
cominciò a prendersela con Perpetua.

se ne = s'ene : BBB, p. 58,
andarsene ;
BBB, p. 58,
liberarsene.

glielo : V, I, 58,
donoglielo ;
BBB, p. 240,
il fazzoletto veniva
a soffogarglielo in gola.

gliela : V, I, 177,
fregogliela ;
BBB, p. 239,
quand'anche non l'avesse mai veduta,
a insegnargliela, non la poteva sbagliare.

gliene : V, I, 207,
egli promettendogliene ;
BBB, p. 94,
e quasi per chiedergliene scusa.

2.—Atonic forms in tonic position.

*mi*¹ = me: U, 6, 4,

voi non l'havri da mi, Donna

Brunetta, voi non l'havri da mi;

Z, nov. 74,

messer Bernabo disse: Messer l'ambasciadore, sali su quel cavallo, e verra' con mi parlando.

*ti*² = te: YY, I, 37,

Onde fora tutti dò de sta cosa.

mi per elezion, ti per obbedienza;

YY, I, p. 37,

ti per imperar a viver con cautela, con più giudizio,
con più rispetto a te pare.

3.—Union of two atonic forms in combinations where the second pronoun usually shows a tonic vowel.

a.—In proclitic position.

tilo: F, p. 30,

senacha disse: quello che tuo sai insegna a chi ti l'adimanda.

tine: F, p. 21,

Salomone disse: tucte le cose fae con consilio, e no ti ne penterai;

F, p. 90,

ti ne dirò.

sigli: BB, p. 20,

La donzella Carduino a chiamato,
E in tal modo sigli prese a dire.

glilo: V, I, 41,

gli lo disse;

LL, I, 207,

E gli diede intenzion ch' l di seguente
Gli lo trarrebbe fuor di quello stato.

glila: LL, I, 3,

Il savio imperator ch'estinguer volse
Un grave incendio, fu che gli la tolse;

LL, I, 205,

In odio gli la pose.

¹ Cf. YY, I, pp. 36, 38, 67; Z, nov. 65 and nov. 69.

² Cf. YY, p. 41.

gline : LL, I, 260,

Se trova alcun che vegghi, sospirando

Gli ne dipinge l'abito e la forma.

b.—In enclitic position.

milo : GG, p. 312,

dissimil^l ecc. ;

V, I, 35,

io m'ucciderò io stessa per levarm*gli* dinanzi.

sigli : V, I, 131,

e per ciò ricorevano a lui per l'aiuto suo, raccomando sigli per amor di Dio.

glilo : Z, nov. 124,

cercò di quello, dov'era

il busecchio, e mandog*lilo* ;

Z, nov. 166,

mostrando di volerg*lilo* ficare nel viso.

lila : Y, p. 34,

far*lila*.

line : M, nov. 26,

et offerse*line* duo marchi.

B.—RÉSUMÉ.

The following table is a résumé of the irregular occurrences noted above. The capital letters represent the authors and the numerals indicate the number of times a given form is found in the author mentioned :—

1.—Tonic pronouns in atonic position.

a.—Single tonics in proclitic position.

me = mi : A3¹, B9, E, F, L, M, N4, O8, P13, R2, U21, V, W60, Z2, AA2, CC9, DD18, GG3, II2, KK5, LL6, NN5, OO, QQ2, WW3, XX38, ZZ, AAA13.

noi = ci : B, G, H, K, L, N, U2, CC, II, LL, NN, YY.

¹ The numeral placed to the right of a capital letter represents the number of times a form occurs in the author given. If no numeral is expressed the form occurs only once in the author indicated.

J. MS
Indest
ne = ci: M5, O71, P14, U12, W6, DD, EE3, II7, LL7, MM, NN, PP, QQ5, SS2, TT, WW3, AAA, FFF2.

te = ti: M, O, P, U, W59, BB, CC3, DD13, GG, II4, NN, OO2, QQ3, UU, WW3, YY11, AAA6, FFF3.

voi = vi: B7, C2, E5, O, P2, U2, CC5, KK4, NN, SS2, YY.

se = si: B, L9, W4, CC, DD, GG.

lui = lo: B3, F, L4, O12, P2, R2, U26, W2, Y2, Z, AA, EE, GG, II2, KK3, LL7, NN, OO4, QQ, SS.

lei = la: B2, C, E2, N, O, P10, S, U29, W, EE3, GG3, II, LL12, OO, WW2, AAA2, CCC.

el = il: B2, K13, L2, W112, AA, CC, YY3.

loro = gli: E, H, K10, L4, O4, P2, Q, R3, S, U49, Y2, GG, II21, JJ, LL85, NN5, OO4, SS, TT, UU4, WW, ZZ2, AAA, BBB, CCC2.

b.—Single tonics in enclitic position.

aa.—Attached to the verb.

me in rhyme: P23, W5, LL13, TT, YY, CCC.

me not in rhyme: B, L2, P, S2, W8, CC3, KK, NN3, YY8.

ne not in rhyme: O7, II, QQ2.

te not in rhyme: DD.

bb.—Not attached to the verb.

me = mi: B6, E3, F, I, M2, N, O20, P17, R, S, U7, V5, W15, X, Z8, AA, CC2, FF3, GG2, II5, KK7, LL4, NN, OO, QQ2, XX, YY, AAA3, BBB3, DDD2, EEE.

noi = ci: A, C, H, N, O7, R, U5, Z, CC, KK, NN, SS, YY, AAA, DDD.

te = ti: F4, I, M, O8, P2, U12, V2, W3, X, Z4, CC, DD, EE, GG5, KK, LL, MM, QQ3, TT, AAA, BBB2, DDD2.

voi = vi: A3, B6, C, E8, F, N, P7, U3, V, Y, CC, GG2, LL, NN, OO2, SS, YY2, BBB, FFF.

lui = lo : B2, C, F3, L10, M, N2, O46, P5, S2, U42, V6, W6, X, Y3, Z8, AA, BB2, CC, DD3, FF2, II13, KK7, LL21, MM3, NN, OO3, SS, TT2, UU, BBB5, DDD2.

lei = la : B3, C6, E5, K, O13, P22, U25, V2, W2, AA, EE3, GG4, HH, II9, LL26, NN, QQ3, TT4, XX, ZZ, BBB, CCC2.

loro = li, le, gli : H32, K, L4, O2, P12, Q9, R6, S47, U59, Y16, GG10, II80, LL92, NN38, OO, SS4, TT9, UU14, ZZ13, AAA, BBB33, CCC3, rule¹ in A, B, C, D, E, F, G, I, J, M, N, T, V, W, X, Z, AA, BB, CC, DD, EE, FF, HH, JJ, KK, MM, PP, QQ, RR, VV, WW, XX, YY, DDD, EEE, FFF.

2.—Atonic forms in tonic position.

mi = me : U3, Z7, YY38, FFF.

ti = te : YY6.

3.—Double forms where the first is generally written as a tonic, but sometimes both are atonic.

The combinations in which both pronouns are unaccented will be placed to the right of those in which the first form shows a tonic vowel. In all the texts not mentioned in the résumé below, me lo, te lo, se lo, me ne, te ne, se ne, glielo, gliela, gliene, etc., are found to the exclusion of mi lo, ti lo, si lo, etc.²

a.—In proclitic position.

sel : BB3.

glielo : Z8, LL8, V11.

gliene : Z11, FF, LL, UU2.

ti lo : F rule.

ti ne : F rule.

sigli : BB2.

gli lo : Z4, LL30, V.

gli la : V, Z3, JJ rule, LL6.

li le : M rule.

gline : Z2, FF2, JJ rule, LL9, UU2.

¹ "Rule" indicates that the construction given is found without variants.

² This statement includes all combinations of mi, ti, si, with lo, etc.; la, etc., and ne (cf. melo, mela, te lo, te la, selo, se la, glielo, gliela, gliene).

b.—In enclitic position.

melo : GG, V3, KK15, PP2.

mil : GG.

mili : J rule.

migli : V, KK, PP.

sigli : V rule.

gli lo : Z rule.

li la : Y rule.

line : M rule.

C.—Discussion of tonic pronouns in atonic position.

A construction common to all the periods of Italian literature is the use of tonic for atonic forms whenever it is desired to render emphatic the person or thing upon which falls the action of the verb¹.

Eliminating this general construction, the numerous occurrences of tonics for atonics indicated in the list of examples and résumé given on the preceding pages, now require special explanation.

Considered as a whole, three possible reasons for these irregularities suggest themselves :—

First, it is to be noted that this confusion of forms existed in a greater proportion in the early texts than in those of a later date². In the formative period of the language, before the laws of syntax became definitely fixed under the influence of great epoch-making poets and novelists, a finished grammar, the product of centuries of natural growth and linguistic criticism, is not to be expected. In this transitional period of the Italian speech, as is shown by the endless discussion of grammarians upon the smallest as well as the most important questions of grammar, there was a lack of definite rules governing the syntactical structure, and a want of clear differentiation between the different sets of pronouns, often leaving writers in doubt as to which was right and which was wrong. This uncertainty as to the real distinction between the

¹ NN, p. 127 : Ma se io amo lei, e se ella

Me ama, non è tuttavia ;

AAA, I, 142 : uccidi, uccidi me.

² Cf. résumé, pp. 9-12.

function of tonic and atonic forms may have led to the frequent substitution of the former for the latter.

Secondly, it is to be remarked that in almost all the texts where this mixing occurs the pronouns under discussion frequently stand next to a verb governed either by an expressed or omitted preposition. By the side of such expressions as *a me*¹, *a te*², a se, *a noi*³, *a voi*⁴, *a lui*⁵, a lei piace are found *me*⁶, *te*⁷, se, *noi*⁸, *voi*⁹, *lui*¹⁰, lei piace. Thus, by analogy these tonic pronouns, standing already in conjunctive position and employed as the indirect object of a preposition, may have induced the writer to adopt the same forms as direct and indirect object of a verb, thereby simplifying morphology by the use of a single form in both accented and unaccented position, and, at the same time, carrying out the general tendency toward leveling and generalizing in Italian forms.

In the third place, tonic me, te, se may have been used as conjunctives through the influence of dialects like the Venetian, which shows regularly an e instead of an i in the pretonic and postonic syllable. In the comedies of Goldoni¹¹, representing the popular speech of Italy, are introduced Venetian characters, who invariably interchange tonic and atonic pronouns.

Any one of the suggestions offered might explain theoretically the irregular occurrences in question, but the following explanations seem more tenable in the light of the historic growth of the Italian language.

1.—In proclitic position.

a. —me, te, se—remnants of the Latin accusative.

If we should admit according to D'Ovidio¹² that mi, ti, si arose from a mixing of the Latin dative and accusative,

¹ Q, p. 16 : se a me convenesse andare ecc.

² I, p. 8 : a te darai di persona.

³ Q, p. 3 : a noi parano utili.

⁴ NN, p. 55 : a voi piace.

⁵ P, I, 155 : a lui piace.

⁶ O, Purg. XVI, 143 : me convien partirmi.

⁷ N, p. 12 : Ove te piace.

⁸ G, p. 28 : *tredici staia e mezzo di o grano
O di farina, qual noi piacesse.*

⁹ J, p. 3 : Se voi piace.

¹⁰ L, p. 217 : ca lui piacesse.

¹¹ YY, I, p. 10, ve servirò.

¹² Archivio Glottologico Italiano, vol. IX, p. 67.

resulting finally in the generalizing of the Latin dative case, beginning, for example, with such forms as mi, in mi pare, where the mi is the regular dative and afterward carried by analogy to mi in the accusative; as, in mi vide, we would not for a moment suppose that this analogy was complete from the beginning; but would naturally expect to find me, etc., by the side of mi, etc., at least, in the earliest texts. The argument from analogy, as given above, might explain the pronouns, mi, ti, si, and the analogy would, if accepted, account for the occurrence of the double forms mi, etc., and me, etc., in atonic position, but it is unnecessary to resort to an explanation based on analogy when a phonetic one is possible.

A better solution of the question is that based on the statement of Meyer-Lübke¹, who says: "Die tonlosen Objektspronomina lauten für den Singular der zwei ersten Personen mi, ti, si streng nach den Lautregeln, wonach tonloses e zu i wird para. 123." Taking this statement as a point of departure, it is evident that a leveling period was gone through before the final adoption of the single i-form; for the passage of pretonic e > i was not complete in the earliest Tuscan monuments. Hence, we would be greatly surprised if we should not find an occasional substitution of e for i until the law of pretonics became definitely fixed and understood in the language. An argument supporting this supposition is the frequent occurrence in Old Italian of e for i in the pretonic syllable not only in the pronouns, but also in other parts of speech².

Now, if, according to Meyer-Lübke³, the pronouns mi, ti, si derive directly from Latin me, te, se, any form showing the original e in pretonic position will be explained as a remnant of the Latin accusative. The persistence of this case in Italian is not strange; Italy being the home of Latin, and Italian writers using it instead of their own language to a very late date, it is natural that Latin forms

¹ It. Gram., ¶ 370.

² Cf. Crestomazia Italiana dei Primi Secoli.

Per Ernesto Monaci. Fascicolo Primo.

Città di Castello, 1889, p. 169, line 23 (A), ritenere; line 23 (B), retenere; p. 184, line 53, desmonta; p. 182, line 87, segnoria.

Cf. also L, p. 199: retornare; p. 204, remanere.

R, p. 203: el più sicuro; p. 198, el suo tener.

³ It. Gram., ¶ 370.

should live on in Italian. Just as the Latin neuter plurals¹ mia, tua, sua, were preserved by the side of miei, etc.; mie, etc., so were the accusative forms me, te, se kept for a time by the side of the new atonic formations mi, ti, si.

b.—el for il a dialectical form.

The use of el for il (< Lat. ILLUM) as direct object of a verb is non-Tuscan, for the reason that in this dialect Latin i always remains in the pretonic² syllable. Then, since this form is found chiefly in texts where popular and dialectical occurrences are common (cf. K, L³, W⁴, AA, CC, YY), it is reasonable to suppose that it is a simple borrowing from some dialect in which it is a natural growth. Now, because the dialects of Southern France⁵ show this form and because in W (an Italian text in which this phenomenon occurs one hundred and twelve times) is introduced a character who speaks in Provençal, it is very probable that this was the dialect to make the loan.

2.—me and te in enclitic position.

a.—Attached to the verb.

PREVIOUS TREATMENT.

Francesco Fortunio⁶, while defining the various rules for the use of pronouns, says: "la quarta regola serà che questi pronomi oblichi me, te, se convertono e in i quando si congiogon al verbo immediatamente, come, dissemi, fecemi, consumati. Overo quando l o vero r precede i che ad et altro modo si dice, come ferirmi e ferirme, farmi, farme, valmi, valme." My objection to this statement is that it is simply an attempt to make a rule out of a mere coincidence. Perhaps this explanation occurred to the grammarian, because, in many cases, where the pronoun is united with a verb, it is joined to an infinitive, where the

¹ Cf. L. Emil Menger, "The Historical Development of the Possessive Pronouns in Italian," pp. 28, 29.

² Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 123.

³ p. 198: essa la terra ei diede.

⁴ U r: Poi si traemo per la drita via.

⁵ Cf. Bartsch, Chrestomathie Provençale. Elberfeld, 1868, p. 419.

⁶ Regole Grammaticali della Volgar Lingua, Siena, 1533, p. 17.

r naturally precedes. However, the occurrences in the texts consulted show that the letter preceding the pronoun attached, was of no importance¹.

While discussing this same question, Jacopo Gabriello² remarks: "il te veramente non è stato da alcuno scrittore usato finiente ne la e, dico al verbo vicino, o ne le rime, o altrove che egli cada, perchè da lui lontano sempre in e termina. Il che certo mi pare cosa nuova a dover dire, che se io dico desiderarme, perchè non mi si dee conceder medesimente il dire, desiderarte?" This grammarian attempts no explanation of the point in question, but simply states that me, and not te, can occur in enclitic position.

Upon the development of me in postonic position D'Ovidio³ says: "gli aitar*me*, par*me* ecc. poet. (unico es. nella D. C. e il d'altro non calme del Purg. VIII 12), non so se possan tenersi strascichi d'una fase anteriore, o non piuttosto si riducano a semplici applicazioni della forma tonica (cfr. dissi lui, lor dissi), agevolate dall' esempio del me ecc. di altri dialetti (roman., pugliese ecc.) ed anche dalle frequenti alternative d' -i ed -e ne' nomi e verbi (tu gride = gridi ecc.)." The theories of the scholar just quoted are suggestive and may have a practical value in the solution of the point in hand; however, for the reason that the material collected supports neither of the conjectures offered, one is justified in seeking another explanation for the union of tonic me and te with verbs.

These forms were first attached to the verb for rhyme.

Of the sixty-two occurrences of me and te joined to the verb in the texts consulted, forty-four⁴ are in rhyme, fourteen others in poetry and the remaining four in prose works (L and S), where the substitution of *e*⁵ for atonic i is frequent. This makes it evident that these forms first arose in this position for the sake of rhyme, and were afterward carried by analogy, aided by poetic license, to constructions not in rhyme.

¹ Cf. W, aiiv : Et aparveme chosse nel dormire ;
aiiii5, missime alhor per la monstrata via.

² Regole Grammaticali, venetia, 1548, fol. Dij.

³ Archiv. Glott. It., p. 70, n. 3.

⁴ Cf. P, I, 172 :

Col dolce spirito, ond'io non posso aitar*me*,
Son l'aura, innanzi a cui mia vita fugge.

⁵ Cf. L, p. 204 : el fratello ; cf. el for il in S, edition of Bologna, 1490'

b.—me and te following immediately after the verb and not attached.

A suggestion that might explain the occurrence of all tonic pronouns in this position is that they may have been employed here for the purpose of individualizing in a more marked way the person or object receiving the action of the verb for clearness and distinction.

However, since the atonic forms generally emphasize the persons sufficiently well, it is very probable that the use of me and te in such constructions represents a mere development of tonic forms in atonic position¹.

3.—Tonic forms that have a similar explanation in proclitic and enclitic position.

a.—ne, the first person plural.

Caix², while discussing the origin of the first and second person plural, gives the following developments: noi, voi > no', vo' > no, vo > ne, ve (by analogy to me, te, se) > ci, vi (in Tuscan by anal. to mì, tì, sì); then, on account of a confusion with ne (< indē) nì remained as ne until finally supplanted by ci.

Opposing this theory is the statement of D'Ovidio³, who says: "Toccando poi anche delle forme atoniche del plurale, noi persisteremo risolutamente a credere, che l' it. ne per 'noi, a noi', o vi per 'voi, a voi' sieno semplicemente gli avverbi (inde, ibi)."

A similar opinion is that of Meyer-Lübke⁴, who claims that the pronominal forms ci and vi have the same origin as adverbial ci and vi, and identifies ne (= noi, a noi) with ne (< INDE).

The explanation proposed by the last two authorities quoted is doubtless the correct one, being supported by the actual existence of INDE⁵ in Italian texts, meaning "us," "to us." But, granting the truth of the hypothesis, that

¹ Cf. O, Inf. XXIII, 91: Poi disser me ecc.;

Par. XXIV, 152, Così, benedicendomi cantando;

Tre volte cinse me, sì com'io tacque.

Inf. XXIII, 50, Come il Maestro mio per quel vivagno, Portandosene me sopra il suo petto.

² Origini della Lingua Poetica Italiana. Firenze, 1880, ¶¶ 93 and 207.

³ Archiv. Glott. It., vol. IV., p. 77.

⁴ Cf. It. Gram., ¶ 370.

⁵ Compare Meyer-Lübke, It. Gram., ¶ 370.

ne, the first person plural, does derive directly from Latin INDE, the question still remains unsettled as to why the form ne, being employed regularly as the pretonic and postonic syllable, shows an e instead of an i.

Neither of the theories offered accounts for the persistence of this e of ne in atonic position.

Now, the only construction in which ne is phonetic is when it is used in enclitic position, where postonic¹ ẽ (cf. INDE) remains as distinguished from pretonic² ẽ, which regularly > i. However, because the occurrences of ne (= noi, a noi) noted in the texts are mainly proclitic³, it would not be a logical deduction to say that the examples in pretonic position were fashioned upon the comparatively few enclitic uses. In like manner, one may safely hazard the statement that ne, the first person plural, could not have taken its e from adverbial ne (< INDE), since this adverbial ne is used also in unaccented position along by the side of the regular atonic forms ci and vi and should itself > ni. Nor can pronominal and adverbial ne be analogical buildings upon the conjunction ne, if we accept the theory of Meyer-Lübke⁴, where he says: "L'opposé de et, c'est-à-dire nec, fait encor plus de difficulté: l'italien ne semble être une forme atone."

A better suggestion to account for this irregular development is to suppose that ne for ni arose first in constructions like me ne parlò (= m'enne parlò)⁵, where the second form is regularly tonic⁶ and that the ne in m'enne, t'enne, s'enne, etc., was afterward carried to constructions where the single form ne was employed as pronoun or adverb; as, ne parlò.

The conjunction ne is then a further analogical growth upon the ne and m'enne, etc., above indicated.

¹ Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 106.

² Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 123.

³ Cf. Table, pp. 9-12.

⁴ Grammaire des Langues Romanes, Paris, 1890. Vol. I., ¶ 613.

⁵ Cf. m'elo, t'elo, m'ene, t'ene, ecc., p. 21.

⁶ Cf. p. 23.

b.—*noi, voi, lui, lei, loro*¹.

The frequent use of these tonic pronouns for the corresponding unaccented ones is a simple application² of tonic forms in atonic position. Just as *ello*³ and *ella*⁴ were used in Old Italian for the articles lo and la, so were tonic noi, voi, lui, lei, loro often substituted for atonic ci, vi, lo, la, gli, etc.

POSITION OF loro.

With the exception of loro the pronouns mentioned above have always been placed either before or after their governing verb.

Until the present century the place occupied by loro in the sentence seems to have been an uncertain and doubtful one. The Italian grammarians⁵, in general, have given the rule that it should follow rather than precede its verb.

By comparing the table (pp. 9-12), it will be seen that the construction with loro both before the verb and loro after the verb were admissible until about the eighteenth century. It will be further noted that some writers, even in Old Italian, used the latter construction to the exclusion of the former, and in the nineteenth century it seems to be a generally accepted law that loro shall follow its verb.

The occurrences of loro before the verb may be explained either as Latin survivals, or as being fashioned upon possessive constructions like le loro figlie, etc., where the pronoun precedes the noun to which it belongs.

¹ loro has been classed heretofore as a regular conjunctive form, but for the same reason that noi, voi, lui, and lei are tonic, loro is also a tonic form, since it stands after prepositions just as the other forms in b.

² Cf. II, I, 189: Come astolfo lui vide in su la sella, A giostra fieramente lo sfidava; V, II, 193, se io ucciderò lui, lo manderò all' inferno; II, III, 42, Non calse lei, ma cavòlla d'arcione; II, I, 233, Chingue lei saluta o le favella.

³ L, p. 203: ello suo tempo.

⁴ L, p. 209: ella guerra.

⁵ Cf. Biagoli, Grammaire Italienne, Paris, 1819, p. 146; Veneroni, le Maître Italien, Paris, 1796, p. 105; Abbé Mugnozzi, Les Éléments de la Langue Italienne, Paris, 1783, ¶ 144; Fornaciari, Grammatica Italiana, Firenze 1891, ¶ 1190.

SYNTACTICAL EVOLUTION OF lui, lei, loro.

Loro (< illorum) passes first from the Latin genitive idea to the Italian case of indirect object, being later adopted as the direct object of a verb and subject of a sentence.

The converting of the genitive loro into the dative signification is explained by Schwan¹, who, while treating this form for the French, says: "Die Verwendung des lat. Genitivs zur Bezeichnung eines Dativverhältnisses erklärt sich vielleicht aus dem Gebrauch von lor-leur als Possessivum (vgl. ¶ 411, 1). Man sagte z. B. voi ci lor chastel und bildete danach cist chastels lor apartient."

The motive that led to the almost universal adoption of the tonic form loro in the position of unaccented gli and le was doubtless a desire to prevent the confusion of these plurals with their singulars of the same form. The change of lui, lei, loro, from the dative function to that of the accusative and nominative was perhaps by analogy to *colui, colei, coloro*², which were employed as direct object of a verb and subject of a proposition early in the Italian.

The first examples of lui and loro as nominatives found in the texts on which the present study is based were noted in H., where loro occurs ten times as subject and lui thirteen times. However, the use of lui, lei, loro, as the subject of a verb did not become a regular usage until the time of Manzoni (BBB) in whose works the vernacular of the people plays so important a part.

c.—me lo, etc.; te lo, etc.; se lo, etc.; me ne, te ne, se ne: glielo, etc.; gliene.

HISTORICAL TREATMENT.

With reference to these double forms Blanc³ remarks: "Wenn die Pronomina mi, ti, gli, ci, vi, si, untereinander verbunden werden, bleiben sie unverändert und getrennt: mi ti, mir dich; ti gli, dir sie; vi si, euch sich; wenn sie aber mit lo, la, le, li, gli, und ne verbunden werden, so verwandeln sie ihr i in e. Also nicht milo, ti la, ci gli, si ne, sondern me lo, te lo, ce gli, se ne, etc." The opinion expressed by this grammarian seems to have been shared by all the Italian grammarians up to his time.

¹ Grammatik des Altfranzösischen, ¶ 399, 5 Anm.

² Cf. Giacomo Cabriele, Regole Grammaticali, Venetia, 1545, p. 8: "Colui, colei, coloro, che dando si a persone più lontane de le primiere, sono dela istessa maniera de le tre dette, nel diritto, e negli obliqui casi parimente ponendosi."

³ Grammatik der Italiänischen Sprache, Halle, 1844, p. 251.

D'Ovidio¹, while discussing these pronouns, says: "Io tengo fermamente, e ho sempre tenuto, che in codeste crasi pronominali l'e appartenga al secondo pronome e la vera dissezione sia m'elo m'ela m'eli m'ele, t'elo ecc., s'elo ecc., m'ene t'ene s'ene, c'elo ecc., v'elo ecc., gli' elo ecc., gli' ene."

The double forms included in the quotation above will be considered under the following divisions: Combinations of the first and second person or reflexive with a pronoun of the third person, and combinations of a third personal pronoun with a third person, neither of which is a reflexive.

me lo, etc.; te lo, etc.; se lo, etc.; me ne, te ne, se ne = m'ello, etc.; t'ello etc.;
s'ello, etc.; m'enne, t'enne, s'enne.

Proving the correctness of the orthography m'ello, etc., is, first of all, the preservation of ello, etc., and enne in the Southern forms portam-ille, portam-ella, *vatt-enne*².

Secondly, elo, etc., and ene for the ello, etc., and enne in question are still seen in the Tuscan combinations glielo (= gli + elo), gliela (= gli + ela), gliene (= gli + ene)³. That this elo, etc., and ene are survivals of ello, etc., and enne and that the e was not thrown in as a mere glide, when these forms were combined with gli, according to Biagoli⁴, Mugnozzi⁵ and others, is evidenced by the fact that the e must have been present before gli developed, since this form could have arisen only before a vowel⁶.

Thirdly, a similar usage appears in the union of the preposition and article in dello, nello, etc., which according to D'Ovidio⁷ should be written d'ello, n'ello, etc. Here the i of in and di is pretonic and forms an exact parallel to the point in question.

¹ Archiv. Glott. It., vol. IV, p. 70, n. 3. Also compare Meyer-Lübke's acceptance of D'Ovidio's theory in his It. Gr., Leipzig, 1890, ¶ 374.

² Cf. D'Ovidio, Archiv. Glott. It., vol. IV., p. 70, n. 3; Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 374.

³ Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 374.

⁴ Grammaire Italienne, Paris, 1819, p. 147.

⁵ Les Éléments de la Langue Italienne, Paris, 1783, ¶ 192.

⁶ D'Ovidio, Glott. It., vol. IV., p. 100.

⁷ Archiv. Glott. It., vol. IX., p. 70, n. 3.

Thus, from the reasons already given the most logical deduction seems to be to suppose that me lo, etc., and me ne, etc., were once written mello, etc., and menne, etc., the i being elided before e, and, because, in Old Italian the apostrophe was omitted, in the natural process of syllabication the e was looked upon as belonging to the m, etc., rather than to the lo, etc., and ne. The writing of l and n instead of -ll- and -nn- in these combinations is due to the fact that the two pronouns in me lo, etc., and me ne, etc., were generally written separate and hence the double consonants could not stand as initial. The probable stages of this development are as follows: Miello, etc., mi enne, etc. > mello, etc.; menne, etc. > me llo, etc., me nne, etc. > me lo, etc., me ne, etc.

glielo, etc.; gliela, etc.; gliene =
gliello, etc., gliella, etc., glienne.

The original form of these words was probably gliello, etc., and glienne, this orthography being justified by the fact that the second pronoun in these combinations is tonic, as is shown by the e instead of an *i*¹ and hence the writing gliello, etc. (< li-illum, etc.) and glienne (< li-indē) is just as regular as the preservation of the -ll- in the nominatives ello and ella. The reason why Italian writers have always adopted the form with a single -l- and -n- is doubtless because these forms are analogical growths by the side of me lo, etc., where the two pronouns were written separate.

It is to be noted also that in Old as well as in Modern Italian the gli in the combinations like glielo and gliene stands for both masculine li and feminine le, the i of li (< illi) remaining and the e of le becoming i regularly in hiatus², the result obtained in both cases being li, which then > gli before the following e just as the article li > gli in gli amici (cf. li elo, le elo > li elo > glielo).

Of popular origin are the sporadic occurrences of *glielle*³ employed for the different forms of lo and *la*⁴.

¹ Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 123.

² Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 141.

³ Cf. U, 9, 5: E tutto glielle graffiò (il viso); 2, 9, e presentogliele (i falconi); 2, 8, il conte con lagrime glielle diede (la figliuola); 3, 3, piena di stizza glielle (a lei) tolsi di mano, ed holla recata a voi, acciocchè voi glielle (a lui) rendiate.

⁴ Cf. Biagoli, Gram. It., Paris, 1819, p. 147; Blanc, It. Gr., p. 252.

d.—The second pronoun in these combinations (No. c) is tonic.

In regard to the reason for the change of i to e in me lo, etc., Biagoli¹ remarks: "Ce changement de l' i en e se fait d'après un principe général d'harmonie, qui exige que lorsqu' un mot sans accent termine en i, se joint à un autre mot également privé d'accent, l'on change l' i du premier en e, sans quoi l' on aurait des mots de deux syllabes sans l'accent tonique, ce qui est impossible." Other grammarians who have adopted the writing me lo, etc., do not state specifically that the first of these two pronouns is tonic, but merely say that mi, ti, si > me, té, se when placed before forms like lo, la, ne.

With reference to atonic words, Meyer-Lübke² posits the following general law: "Il faut tout d'abord remarquer qu' en règle générale il ne peut y avoir deux mots atones de suite, à moins que l'un des deux ne perde sa voyelle: v. g. a.—franç. mel = me-le. Mais habituellement c'est le second, qui est accentué. Par conséquent, les prépositions composées ont toujours l'accent plein: adprôpe, ital. apruovo, a.—franç. a pruef."

It is easy to believe that the law just quoted applies to the combinations under discussion, since we naturally lay stress upon the second of the two pronouns; for example, no one ever says glielo, gliene, but gliélo, gliéne.

In the second place, if we accept the conclusions already reached; namely, that me lo, etc., should be written m'ello, etc.³, we are forced to admit that, if either of these two forms bear an accent, it must fall upon the second element, since the first loses its vowel in hiatus.

Again, in the parallel combinations formed by the junction of a preposition with a definite article (*cf. d'ello*⁴, etc.) the second form is as clearly tonic as are the personal pronouns ella and ellic. Now, since the double forms d'ello, etc., and m'elo (= m'ello) arose under similar conditions; namely, by the union of a monosyllabic atonic with ello, etc. (< illum), the evidence favoring the accentuation

¹ Grammaire Italienne, Paris, 1819, p. 60.

² Grammaire des Langues Romanes, vol. I., ¶ 612.

³ Cf. p. 21.

⁴ Cf. L, p. 205, ello suo tempo; BB, p. 209, ella guerra; KK, p. 15, Credette quel chella madre diciea; L, p. 11, E 'padre ed ella madre.

of the second element of the former would apply equally well to the latter.

The reason why the two l's are preserved in dello, etc., and not in me lo, etc., is because in the former the two words were generally written as one, while in the latter they were separated, the tonic vowel of the second pronoun being carried to the first, and, hence, the double consonants could not be kept as initial¹.

In the fourth place, if the ello, etc., and enne in these combinations were not tonic they would have > illo, etc., and *inne*².

The enclitic uses of me lo, te lo, se lo, me ne, te ne, se ne, glielo, gliene, offer no objection to the statement that the second form in the corresponding proclitic combinations is tonic. In constructions like dirmelo, dirtelo, the verb being the more important member of the compound retains the stress, while both pronouns are unstressed and hence enclitic according to the rule in Italian that no word can bear more than one tonic accent. However, the e is kept in darmelo, etc., by analogy to the numerous occurrences of the same combinations in proclitic position.

D.—Discussion of atonic forms in tonic position.

1.—Introduced through dialectical influence.

A suggestion offered to explain the substitution of tonic for atonic forms; namely, that they arose from a simple mixing of the two at a time when the laws of syntax were not fixed, might apply here also. However, a most serious objection to this explanation is the fact that the atonic pronouns are not found in the position of the tonic until the time of Boccaccio. If this irregularity is to be attributed to a mere confusion of the unaccented with the accented pronouns, why did it not exist in the earliest Italian monuments, when there was a reason for such a mixing of forms?

A better explanation seems to be to account for this abnormal usage as a borrowing from dialects in which mi, ti, si are regular tonic forms.

Strengthening this supposition is the argument that the first occurrences of atonic pronouns in accented position

¹ Cf. p. 22.

² Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 123.

were noted in U¹, where are constantly employed popular forms and idioms. Thus, it is perfectly reasonable to suppose that Boccaccio used mi after prepositions under the influence of dialects like the Lombard and Piemontese, and Sacchetti, writing novels of a similar kind, adopted the usage of Boccaccio. Furthermore, the late origin of this construction, the few authors using it, and the long gap between Sacchetti and Goldoni in whose works it is most frequent point to the working of external influences traceable to individual authors rather than to a Tuscan development. MB

E.—Extent of the mixing of tonic and atonic forms.

By a glance at the table² it will be noted that the occurrence of tonic pronouns in atonic position is found in the earliest texts of the language and continues down to a comparatively late date. It will be further observed that, although some authors used them to a much greater extent than others, the usage was a general one and does not seem to have originated with any special class of writers. In addition, it may be said that the line of authors who adopted these irregularities was a continuous one, there being no notable breaks from their origin to their final disappearance, although a very perceptible decrease in their use is observable in the later periods.

The usage of unaccented pronouns in accented position is represented as follows in our texts:

mi, U3, W1, Z6, YY38, FFF; ti, YY6.

F.—Time of disappearance.

Me, te, noi, voi, ne, lui and lei in proclitic position may be said to have disappeared for the most part from Italian literature before the sixteenth century. Se in this position was seldom employed even by the earliest writers and ceased to be used entirely about the fifteenth century. El is probably a Provençal³ form and occurs only in B, K, L, W, AA, CC, YY and can be assigned to no special periods, for the reason that it may be used by any author writing under the influence of this language.

¹ Blanc, It. Gr., Halle, 1844, p. 20.

² Cf. pp. 9-12.

³ Cf. p. 15.

Of the three tonic forms found in enclitic position attached to the verb, me was employed until about the time of the Italian Renaissance for the sake of rhyme, while te occurs only once¹ and ne (meaning "us," "to us") ten times.

In enclitic position not attached to the verb, me, te, voi, lui, lei are very frequent in Old Italian, being used sporadically even in the present century; while noi, although spread over almost the same period as the forms just mentioned, occurs much less extensively.

The occasional uses of atonics in the position of the accented pronouns are distributed over the long period from Boccaccio to Carducci.

CONCLUSIONS.

From the examples and argument given on the preceding pages the following conclusions may be drawn:

1.—That me, te, se in proclitic position are remnants of the Latin accusative that had not yet > mì, tì, sì according to the general law that pretonic e > i.

2.—That el for il was used by certain Tuscan writers through the influence of the Provençal and certain Italian dialects, where this form was the regular oblique masculine singular.

3.—That me in enclitic position attached to the verb arose first in rhyme and was later carried to constructions in poetry where it was not used in rhyme².

4.—That the e of ne (< INDE) used for the first person plural is by analogy to ne in combinations like me ne, te ne, se ne (= m'enne, etc.), where the second element is tonic and regularly preserves its e. This analogy was carried not only to all the forms of pronominal and adverbial ne, but also to the conjunction ne.

5.—That noi, voi, lui, lei, loro in proclitic and enclitic position are a simple application or development of tonic pronouns in unaccented position. The change of loro from the genitive to the dative function was by analogy to possessive constructions, like la loro casa on which was built the kindred idea expressed by la casa loro appartiene. The further evolution of lui, lei, loro from the sphere of the dative to that of the accusative and nominative is by analogy to colui, colei, coloro.

¹ Cf. DD, p. 181.

² Te occurs only once joined to the verb (cf. DD, p. 181).

6.—That me lo, etc.; te lo, etc.; se lo, etc.; me ne, etc., should be written m'ello, etc., and that the reason why these forms are written with a single l at present is because the tonic vowel of the second pronoun has been transferred to the first and the two l's cannot stand as initial (cf. me llo > me lo).

7.—That glielo, etc., and gliene are equivalent to gliello, etc., and glienne, one l being omitted in modern orthography by analogy to the parallel combinations me lo, etc. Also, the gli in these double forms is the representative of masculine li (< ILLI) and feminine le (< ILLAE), both giving gli in hiatus with the e of the following word (cf. li ene, le ene > gliene).

8.—That the second form in the combinations m'ello, etc., and gliello, etc., is tonic.

9.—That the use of atonic mi and ti in accented position is due to the influence of dialects in which these forms are regular tonic developments.

CHAPTER II.

USES OF ATONIC FORMS IN ATONIC POSITION.

A.—Examples of regular occurrences in texts examined.

THE pronouns indicated below comply with all the conditions of atonics, showing unaccented forms and standing in conjunctive position, and are therefore perfectly regular. After an example of each phenomenon has been given, a discussion of these pronouns will be taken up.

1.—GENERAL CONSTRUCTIONS.

The list of occurrences mentioned below represents the usage common to all the periods of the Italian language, and hence merely an example of each kind will be cited, and no résumé will follow. They include especially proclitic¹ constructions of the direct and indirect object of finite verbs where the adoption of atonic pronouns is the rule, with the exception of the occasional use of tonic² forms immediately before the verb, or atonics as enclitics³, which special uses have already been counted⁴.

a.—Single proclitics.

aa.—Before finite verbs.

mi : GG, p. 80,

Questo mi prese, e questo mi mantenne.

*mi*⁵ : BBB, p. 16,

mi dispiace.

ci : O, Purg. XV, 104,

Che farem noi a chi ne desira,

Se quei che ci ama e per noi condannato ?

¹ Cf. lo menò, mi parlò.

² Cf. lui menò ; me parlò.

³ Cf. menòllo ; parlòmmi.

⁴ Cf. résumé of tonic forms in proclitic position, pp. 9-10 also résumé of enclitics with finite verbs, pp. 41-42.

⁵ The dative will follow the accusative wherever the two constructions are given.

ci : II, I, 94,

Molte comodità ci ha date Iddio Per ricompensa de le nostre pene.

ti : O, Inf. I, 123,

Con lei ti lascerò nel mio partire.

ti : II, I, 120,

non ti converrà morire.

vi : Z, I, nov. 4,

dice all'Abate : io vi caverò di questa fatica.

vi : O, Inf. XXIII, 128,

Poscia drizzò al frate cotal voce :
Non vi dispiaccia, se vi lece, dirci.
Se alla man destra giace alcuna foce.

si sing. : BB, p. 65,

E Carduin da lei non si diparte.

si plu. : FFF, Ode Barbare, p. 23, poi si riabbracciano.

lo after a final consonant : O, Purg. IX, 81,

E come l'occhio più e più v'apersi
Vidil seder sopra il grado soprano,
Tal nella faccia, ch'io non lo soffersi.

lo before s impure : O, Inf. I, 110,

Noi leggevamo un giorno per diletto Di Lancilotto, come amor lo strinse.

la : O, Inf. I, 109,

Questi la caccerà per ogni villa.

le : II, I, 82,

Ma così nudo e furfante ed a piede,
Fa cose da non creder chi le vede.

le : U, 2, 6,

li quali le parevano la più dolce cosa del mondo.

bb.—Before infinitive constructions.

1. Negative infinitives used imperatively :

AAA, I, p. 132, non ti turbare.

2. Infinitives depending on impersonal verbs :

B, p. 27, ma non mi val seguire.

3. Infinitives depending on fare, vedere, sentire, udire, lasciare :

A, p. 90 v, Amor d'incontra mi fa star sospeso.

b.—Single enclitics.

aa.—*Attached to infinitives*¹.

1. With subject infinitive: U, I, 1, il mandarlo fuori di casa nostra così infermo ne sarebbe gran biasimo.
2. With infinitive depending on noun: S, p. 330, Turno ha intendimento di cacciarmi.
3. With infinitive depending on adjective: U, 5, 8, io son presto di farlo.
4. With object infinitive preceded by di: S, p. 291, desideriava di darla.
5. With purpose infinitives preceded by per: S, p. 22, li artigiani li loro artefici lasciavano per vederlo.
6. With infinitive depending directly on transitive verbs²:
U, 9, 5, pensa volerlo onorare.

bb.—Attached to imperatives.

1. With the first person plural imperative:
FFF, Studi Lett., p. 251, e traduciamola con qualche commento.
2. With the imperative second singular and plural:
F, p. 27, disse: dimi, dimi e insegnami che chosa, e la prudenza:
BBB, p. 6, inseguitemi.
3. With ecco: II, I, 43, eccoli insieme.

c.—Constructions common to proclitic and enclitic position.

1. Indirect object with verbs accompanied by innanzi, dietro, sopra, diempetto, incontra, davanti, avanti, incontro, dentro, dinanzi:
V, II, 208, gli venne incontra.
2. Dative strengthening the possessive: H, p. 195, lo Cardinale si levò lo capello.

¹ For the use of pronouns with the present participle compare F. p. 50: Mostrandomi li pericoli.

² Except verbs of making, causing, seeing, feeling, hearing, letting, permitting.

3. Active reflexive in which the agent is the voluntary cause of the action :
F, p. 21, allora si levò l'uno de' medici di fedite.
4. Passive reflexive in which the agent suffers the action without willing it : K, p. 21,
O figliuolo mio, perchè ti spaventi tue di tanta paura ?
5. First person precedes the second : O, Par. VIII, 52,
La mia letizia mi ti tien celato.
6. First and second persons precede the reflexive si :
F, p. 53, non ti si scuopra lo lato.

2.—SPECIAL CONSTRUCTIONS.

In addition to rare uses, idiomatic phrases, speech formulas and locutions, the following examples include mainly those constructions which belong more especially to individual writers in certain epochs rather than to the Italian language as a whole.

a.—Single proclitics.

Nominatives.

- i'* : O, Inf. I, 8,
Ma per trattar del ben ch'i' vi trovai,
Dirò dell'altre cose ch'io v'ho scorte ;
Inf. X, 34,
L'aveva già il mio viso nel suo fitto.
- no'* : O, Purg. V, 52 (Blanc, It. Gr. p. 255),
No' fummo già tutti per forza morti ;
PP, p. 77
Qui no' s'iam soli, e so' d'opinione
Che la si volterà in poche parole.
- vo'*¹ : N, p. 76,
k'avemo scritte dolorosamente quelle parole ke vo' avete udite ;
N, p. 17,
ch' i' dissi lor : vo' portate le chiave di ciascuna virtù alta e gentile.
- e'* : II, I, 26,
Rispose Ferraguto : e' mi da 'l core ;
O, Inf. XXII, 101,
Si ch' e' non teman delle lor vendetta.

¹ X, p. 17 ; TT, pp. 82, 169, 174.

*gli*¹: TT, p. 130,
Gli è cittadino, e noi zappiam la terra
 TT, p. 72,
Gli è un che va vestito di cilesto.

*la*²: EE, p. 264,
La non vuol esser più mia,
La non vuol la traditora,
 L' è disposta al più ch'io muora Per amor, e gelosia.

*l*³ = la: PP, p. 85,
 E l' altanto più che la mie manza,
 Poi che la sa che l' è tenuta bella.

gli plu.⁴: TT, p. 83,
 Insino a ora, i' n' ho gettati motti:
Gli han fatto il sordo, e sono stati chiotti;
 TT, p. 169,
Gli han fatto visi che pajon la morte.

*le*⁵: KK, II, 305, sebbene le cose sono in superlativo grado tutto bene, subito le si convertono in un pessimo male TT, p. 124,
le son pur cose ladre.

Atonic forms in hiatus.

*mi*⁶: O, Inf. V, 105,
 Amor, che a nullo amato amar perdona,
 Mi prese del costui piacer sì forte,
 Che, come vedi, ancor non mi abbandona.

*m'*⁷: O, Inf. I, 20,
 Allor fu la paura un poco queta,
 Che nel lago del cor m'era durata
 La notte, ch' i' passai con tanta pietà.

¹ Cf. PP, p. 70; FF, pp. 8r, 55r, 23r; TT, pp. 121, 129, 166, 181.

² This form occurs twelve times as nominative in EE, p. 264.

³ Cf. PP, p. 75; TT, pp. 93, 99, 149; KK, II, 333.

⁴ Cf. W, Ar, Cv, & iir; MM, pp. 59, 114.

⁵ Cf. TT, pp. 86, 82, 121; KK, I, 407, II, 292; U, 2, 9; 8, 3; V, II, 80; AA, p. 83; GG, p. 429; MM, pp. 52, 58, 59, 73, 80, 96, 105.

⁶ Wherever the vowel that follows the atonic form written is not mentioned, the form given is found equally before all vowels.

⁷ The pronoun eliding its vowel will be placed immediately under the one written in full.

*ci*¹ before e or *i*²: U, I, I,

faccendo noi nostro mezzano un suo nemico, amico credendolo, ci exaudisce, come se ad uno veramente santo per mezzano della sua gratia ricorresimo.

c' before *e*³ or i: O, Inf. XII, 51,

O cieca cupidigia, e ria e folle,
Che si ci sproni nella vita corta,
E nell' eterna poi si mal *c'*immolle.

ti: K, I, 77,

non ti ho mai veduto pigliare.

t': K, I, 176,

di chi t' ha fatto male.

vi: O, Par. XXX, 139.

La cieca cupidigia, che vi ammalia,
Simili fatti v' ha al fantolino,
Che muor di fame e caccia via la balia.

v': J, p. 18,

noi v' entenderemo.

si: O, Inf. I, 100,

Molti son gli animali a cui si ammoglia.

s': BB, p. 38,

E'nverso lui ella s' affoltava.

lo: O, Purg. XIV, 69,

Come all'annunzio de' dogliosi danni
Si turba il viso di colui che ascolta, Da qual che parte il periglio lo assanni.

l': J, p. 15,

tu ce l' ài mandato.

la: VV, p. 93,

ma che il mare statole poco propizio ne la avesse divertita.

l': Y, nov. 13,

l' avea tanto veduta.

le dat. fem. sing.: LL, I, 231,

Così dicea la donna con gran pianto,
Quando le apparve l'eremita accanto.

¹ Before a, o and u, ci is not elided.

² Cf. K, I, 234.

³ Cf. K, I, 144.

l' dat. fem. sing.: LL, I, 21,

Non risponde ella, e non sa che si faccia
Perchè Rinaldo omai *l'*è troppo appresso.

Il, 'l, lo after a final vowel and before a single consonant.

Il: O, Inf. II, 31,

.....chi il concede?

Inf. V, 110, Chinai il viso, e tanto il tenni basso.

'l: O, Purg. I, 39, io 'l vedea. NB

lo: II, I, 8, In viso Balagante lo guardava;

O, Inf. VIII, 41, Per che il maestro accorto lo sospinse.

*il*¹ and *lo*² equivalent to English so or it:

WW, p. 259, Arminsi pure i Greci,

Furo ingrati ad Achille, e il sieno a Pirro;

YY, X, 243, il sarete.—

WW, p. 267, Ei giurerà d'esser sostegno al figlio,

E lo sarà ecc.;

YY, I, 58,sarò padre

Per compiacerti, come ora lo sono

Per consigliarti.

i accu. plu.³: O, Inf. V, 78,

Ed egli a me: "vedrai quando saranno

Più presso a noi; e tu allor li prega

Per quell'amor che i mena; e quei verranno;

Inf. VII, 53,

La sconoscente vita, che i fe' sozzi,

Ad ogni conoscenza or li fa bruni.

i indirect singular⁴: O, Par. XXIV, 148,

Come il signor ch'ascolta quel che i piace,

Da indi abbraccia il servo, gratulando

Per la novella, tosto ch'ei si tace;

O, Par. XXIX, 17,

In sua eternità di tempo fuore,

Fuor d'ogni altro comprender, come i piacque,

S'aperse in nuovi amor l'eterno amore.

¹ Cf. WW, p. 255.

² Cf. WW, p. 256; ZZ, XIII, 276, 120; BBB, pp. 125, 263.

³ Cf. O, Inf. XVIII, 18, Par. XII, 26; J, p. 3.

⁴ Cf. O, Inf. XXII, 73; Inf. XXII, 127.

Dative of the possessor¹: WW, p. 260,
gli sarò padre;

AAA, VI, 68,
non ti son figlio io primo?

gli fem. dat. sing.: U, 2, 6, li quali le parevano la più dolce cosa del mondo et la più vezzosa, et non essendolesi anchora del nuovo parto rasciuto il latte del petto quelli teneramente prese, et al petto gli si puose, li quali non rifiutando il servizio, così lei peppavano, come la madre havrebber fatto;

O, Inf. XXXIII, 129 (Blanc, It. Gr. p. 263).

Sappi che tosto che l'anima trade,
Come fec'io, il corpo suo gli è tolto.

b.—Single enclitics with finite verbs².

mi: N, p. 25,
mendò*mmi* sott'una freschetta folgla;

Z, nov. 4,
e raderò*mmi* la barba.

ci: O, Inf. VI, 23,

Quando ci scorse Cerbero, il gran vermo,
Le bocche aperse, e mostrò*cci* le sanne.

Inf. IV, 115,

Traemmò*ci* dall'un de' canti

In loco aperto luminoso ed alto,

Sì che veder poteansi tutti e quanti.

ti: U, 6, 6,

et havròtti in reverenza;

U, 2, 5,

dicò*ti*, che poi che Iddio mi ha fatto tanta gratia.

vi: P, I, 14,

Pregò*vi*, siate accorti.

si: O, Inf. IV, 98, volsers*i* a me.

¹ Cf. DD, p. 134; TT, p. 104; WW, p. 266; AAA, I, 146, 161, 175.

² Examples of the first and second person imperative are not given in this list because the unaccented pronouns are still attached to this mode in the persons indicated.

lo: B, p. 43,
 Ma pur la fine facielo laudato;
 B, p. 43,
 E poi nel mezo avetelo sequito,
 Lo bon fenir vi de' essere in grato.

l: P, I, 59,
E misil per la via quasi smarrita;
 P, II, 6,
Vedel colei, ch' è or si presso al vero.

la: O, Inf. XVIII, 94, Lasciòlla quivi gravida e soletta;
 M, nov. 12,
 combatteo la città, e vinsela, e lo pregio e l'onore n'ebbe David.

li¹: F, p. 68,
 preseli a pregare;
 p. 56,
 concedeli di peccare.

gli: O, Purg. XIII, 153,
 Tu li vedrai tra quella gente vana
 Che spera in Talamone, e perderagli
 Più di speranza, che a trovar la Diana;
 O, Inf. XXII, 71,
 E Libicocco: Troppo avem sofferto,
 Disse, e presegli il braccio col roncioglio,
 Sì che, stracciando, ne portò un lacerto.

le: V, I, 15,
 cominciòlle a mostrare e veli e borse;
 O, Inf. V, 68,
 Vidi Paris, Tristano; e più di mille Ombre mostrommi e nominolle a dito.

c.—Enclitics with che, dietro, addosso, dreto.

mi with *che*²: N, p. 20,
 questi è colui, chemmi si fa sentire.

¹ Since case and number offer no assistance in the explanation of enclitics, no distinction has been made between the singular and plural, or dative and accusative of li and gli.

² Cf. N, pp. 25, 32.

mi with dietro: KK, II, 70, loro sempre venivano a lento passo dietromi;

KK, II, 175,
deretromi.

gli with addosso: KK, I, 114,
e'l cavallo addossogli;

KK, I, 271,
egolino tutti l'un sopra all'altro addossogli.

gli with drieto: Z, nov. 70,
l'altro porco drietogli;

Z, nov. 76,
gli fanciulli con le granate drietogli.

li with drieto: Z, nov. 84,
mino, drietoli parecchi passi gridava;

I, p. 6,
elleno dietrolì co' bastoni.

d.—Constructions common to proclitic and enclitic position.

vi = le: EEE, p. 274, voleva la neve, camminarvi sopra.

vi = gli: BBB, p. 6, non potendo schivare il pericolo,
vi corse incontro.

la, indefinite¹: BBB, 384,
cominciò a prendersela con Perpetua;
DDD, p. 14,
dunque, a che serve pigliarsela a cuore?

l' = la indefinite: BBB, p. 65,
l' è chiara, che l'intenderebbe ognuno;
BBB, p. 130,

“*L'*è dura,” rispose il Griso, restando con un piede sul primo scalino, “l' è dura di ricever de' rim-proveri, dopo aver lavorato fedelmente.”

¹ Cf. BBB, pp. 209, 282 (four ¹mes), 232; DDD, pp. 112, 145.

Pronouns of address.

vi, to princes: KK, II, 202, ora ascoltatevi, Ser Francesco Riccio, che io vi dirò che sono i mia pari;

KK, II, 234,

Vostra Eccellenza non diffidi di me; il perchè di
nuovo le dico, che a me basta la vista di condurre tre volte meglio quest' opera, che non fu il modello; siccome io v' ho promesso.

la: KK, II, 316,

majordomo insinoattanto che Vostra Signoria par-lerà secondo quel nobilissimo grado, in che ella e in volta, io la riverirò e parlerò a lei con quella sommessione, io l' ho da servire;

KK, II, 195,

e perchè sua eccellenza vedessi quanto io avevo voglia di servirla.

le: KK, II, 234,

Vostra Eccellenza non diffidi di me; il perchè di
nuovo le dico, che a me basta la vista di condurre tre volte meglio quest'opera, che non fu il modello.

ella: KK, II, 238,

sappi l'Eccellenza Vostra, che le ribalderie di Ber-nardone mi sforzano a dimandarla e pregarla, che quella mi dica quel ch'ella spesse nel diamante, grande punta ischericata; perchè io spero mostrarle, perche questo mal cerca mettermi in dis-grazia.

e.—Double atonics in which the direct precedes the indirect object in combinations where mi, ti, ci, vi stand next to lo, etc., la, etc.

il before *mi*¹: U, 7, 9,

ella il mi comanderà;

U, 3, 7,

se voi il sapete, ditelmi.

la before *mi*²: U, 6, 4, me la

in fe di Dio se tu non la mi dai;

¹ U, 5, 9; 7, 7; 10, 10; 8, 7; 8, 7; 8, 8; O, Inf. XXV, 48; O, Inf. XVI, 44; Par. XXV, 89.

² U, 3, 1; 2, 10; 3, 9; 7, 10; 5, 1; 5, 4; 8, 8.

use all this!

U, 2, 10,
ove così non fosse voi foreste villania a volerlamì torre.

il before *ti*¹: U, 5, 4,
io il ti prometto;
U, 5, 10,
tienloti a mente.

la before *ti*²: U, 3, 4,
io la ti mosterrò;
U, 4, 4,
noi la ti diamo.

il before *vi*³: U, 1, 1,
io il vi dirò;
U, 6, 10,
diròvi.

la before *vi*⁴: U, 3, 6, hora non credo io, che voi crediate, che io la vi
mandossi;
U, 2, 9,
ma se le vi piacciono, io le vi donerò volentieri.

B.—RÉSUMÉ.

The following table gives a résumé of the examples of the special constructions cited above.

a.—Single proclitics.

Atonic Nominatives.

i': B31, C, F9, H3, K2, M3, N46, O24, P361, R6, S2, U3, V11, W8, X19, Y2, AA30, BB39, DD88, EE8, FF9, GG51, HH10, II18, JJ, KK, LL2, NN5, PP81, QQ72, SS114, TT148, UU6, XX17.

no': D2, X, PP, TT12, O.

vo': N2, X, TT3.

¹ Cf. U, 7, 9; 9, 5; O, Inf. III, 45; O, Purg. XX, 40; Purg. XXXIII, 77; Purg. XXXIII, 119.

² Cf. U, 3, 14; 5, 2; 8, 7; 10, 3.

³ Cf. U, 3, 3; 3, 7; 3, 7; 8, 9; 9, 1; O, Par. XIV, 10.

⁴ Cf. U, 3, 6; 5, 1.

e': B7, C2, F9, H10, I2, K10, M2, N6, O13, P18, R7, S2, U2, V117, X4, Y16, Z154, AA3, BB43, DD4, EE2, GG68, HH2, II33, KK316, LL, MM2, NN4, PP9, QQ5, RR3, SS3, TT174, XX, DDD5, EEE, FFF26.

gli sing.: W, FF3, LL13, PP, QQ, TT53, YY2, DDD10.

gli plu.: W6, TT2, MM2.

la: EE12, II7, KK19, LL, MM11, PP7, TT79, YY38, BBB19, DDD5.

l' = la: AA, PP2, TT34, ~~KK~~, BBB6, DDD4.

le: U2, V, AA, GG, KK7, MM8, TT10, BBB6, DDD.

Proportion of forms not elided when mi, ti, si, vi, lo, la, and the feminine plural le are placed in hiatus¹.

KK²40%, VV75%, WW25%, YY22%, ZZ28%, AAA (vol. VI.) 38%, DDD22%, EEE80%, FFF28%³.

il, l, lo following a final vowel and preceding a single consonant initial.

il: A2, B9, C3, ~~E~~, H, I4, K6, M31, O72, P48, K11, S2, U455, V18, W4, X3, Y9, Z40, AA11, BB8, CC8, DD4, EE5, FF7, GG24, HH6, II260, LL141, MM3, NN26, OO15, PP, QQ62, RR, SS42, TT6, UU42, WW29, XX22, YY5, ZZ4, AAA90, CCC16.

l: A, B9, C5, ~~E~~, F4, K8, M16, N8, O6, P71, R17, S7, U23, V10, X4, Y, Z3, AA5, BB6, DD10, EE6, FF5, GG16, II27, LL32, NN2, OO13, PP5, QQ25, SS31, TT14, UU18, WW3, XX12, YY3, AAA23.

¹ Ci is subject to the same laws of elision as mi, etc., when it occurs before the vowels e and i, but it is always written in full before a, o and u.

² The percentage of elision in each author may easily be computed by subtracting the numerals placed to the right of the capital letters from a hundred.

³ In all the texts not mentioned the proportion of non-elision is less than 2%.

lo: A5, B43, C8, E7, F8, H20, I10, K53, M30, N4, O13, S126, U9, V162, W15, X, Y98, Z160, AA5, BB9, CC3, DD5, EE12, FF14, GG44, HH, II369, LL541, MM54, NN13, OO8, PP4, RR2, SS4, TT27, UU23, VV17, WW23, XX8, YY90, ZZ69, AAA7, CCC2.

il and lo equivalent to English so.

il: WW2, AAA4.

lo: WW3, YY, AAA2.

i accusative plural: J, O4.

i dative singular: O5, N2.

gli fem. dative singular: O, U.

Dative of the possessor: DD, TT, WW2, YY, AAA3.

b.—Single enclitics.

With finite verbs¹.

mi: A4, B23, C2, E8, F, K3, M2, N3, O94, P4, R3, S2, T3, U53, V13, W19, X4, Y4, Z18, AA2, BB3, CC9, DD18, EE, FF10, GG29, II19, JJ6, KK37, LL12, MM,
NN5, OO4, PP5, QQ4, SS13, TT5, AA, WW3, XX13, YY16, ZZ3, AAA15, CCC, FFF4.

ci: O6, R4, U2, DD, GG2, JJ, KK, AAA.

ti: K, M3, O3, R4, S2, U8, W2, X, Z10, DD, GG4, II2, KK, LL, NN, OO2, SS, XX, YY, AAA8.

vi: B6, C, E, O, P5, S2, U10, BB2, II5, KK, XX, YY, AAA.

*si*²: I, Y2, II, FFF2.

lo: B9, G, H27, I10, K26, L, M31, O9, P6, R, S18, T9, U39, V22, W4, X, Y, Z49, BB5, DD4, FF2, GG2, II30, JJ6, KK3, LL42, MM2, NN2, OO, PP, QQ4, SS4, TT, UU5, XX6, YY, CCC4, DDD, FFF.

¹ The first and second person imperative are excluded from this résumé because the atonics are still attached to this mode in the persons mentioned.

² This résumé includes only the reflexive si and not the uses of this form as a sign of the passive signification of the verb.

l : A, B2, E, O4, P4, R, U3, W2, BB3, II3, SS3, TT, AAA.

la : A, B, C, F, H3, I, K4, M10, N, O4, P3, S, T4, U8, V16, Y2, Z14, EE3, GG, II6, JJ2, KK, LL21, MM, NN3, OO, PP, QQ3, TT4, WW2, XX4, AAA3, BBB, FFF2.

li : B2, F2, G2, H6, I4, K7, L3, M56, O5, R, S13, T8, V4, W2, Y10, Z17, AA, GG6, II2, KK, LL3, MM, SS3, WW.

gli : D, H9, I4, O7, P2, S7, T, U81, V40, W5, Z70, BB11, EE3, FF8, GG8, II80, JJ2, KK5, LL35, NN3, QQ4, TT, UU3, VV, XX2, AAA, CCC5, FFF.

le : C, E, I, K5, M8, O2, P2, U13, V16, W, Z, II3, JJ, KK, TT, XX, FFF.

Atonics with che, dereto, drieto, addosso.

mi with che : N8.

mi with dereto : KK.

mi with drieto : KK.

gli with drieto : Z.

gli with addosso : KK2.

li with drieto : I, Z2.

c.—Constructions common to proclitic and enclitic position.

vi equivalent to a third personal dative : II, BBB, EEE.

la and l' (= la) used indefinitely.

la : BBB13, DDD3; l' : BBB4.

d. Pronouns of address.

In order to show the relative frequency of the mixing and competing constructions of voi and ella the corresponding tonic pronouns will be placed to the right of the unaccented forms. In the texts not included in this résumé, voi is adopted, to the exclusion of ella, as the form of polite address.

vi : KK18, YY205.

la : KK14, RR, YY12, BBB13, DDD.

le : V, KK4, RR5, VV2, YY4, BBB46, DDD5.

voi : KK13, YY162.

ella : KK16, RR4, VV, YY11, BBB.

lei : KK3, RR6, VV3, YY3, BBB124,
DDD33.

e.—Double atonics in which the direct precedes the indirect object¹.

il mi : B3, E, M4, O, P, U6, W, NN, SS. ✓

lo mi : B, M2, O, U4, BB, LL, NN, FFF. ✓

la mi : B, U7, KK, NN3, OO, PP, TT. ✓

le mi : P, U3, NN2. ✓

il ci : M, U. ✓

lo ci : U, NN. ✓

le ci : NN. ✓

il ti : O5, U3, SS. ✓

lo ti : B, M2, O3, U, Z, NN2, UU. ✓

la ti : M2, N, U4, NN2. ✓

le ti : UU. ✓

il vi : U20, NN. ✓

lo vi : C, M4, O. ✓

la vi : U2, NN2. ✓

le vi : U3, NN. ✓

C.—Discussion of single atonics.

1.—In proclitic position.

a.—Nominatives i', i, no', vo', e', gli, la, l' (= la), le.

On this point Meyer-Lübke² remarks: "Im Toskanischen kennt von Subjektivepronomina nur io eine proklitische Form: i, die in alter Zeit auch in der Litteratur gebräuchlich war, s. Caix, Orig. 210."

¹ This table includes only combinations of the first and second personal forms with a third person not reflexive.

² Cf. It. Gr., ¶ 369.

Of the other proclitic¹ forms above mentioned e' certainly points, because of the frequency of its occurrence in the best Italian texts² to a Tuscan origin and growth, just as in the case of i' and i; while the shortened nominatives *no'*³, *vo'*⁴, *gli*⁵, la', l' (= la) and le belong more especially to popular speech⁶.

E' the elided form of ei can stand only before a consonant, while *i'*¹⁰ and *i*¹¹, the shortened forms of io are used both before vowels and consonants.

Interesting as a study of the Italian folk speech is the use of double nominatives¹² in cases where a noun standing as the regular subject of a proposition is followed by a pronoun used as the subject of the same verb¹³. Illustrating a similar usage is the occurrence of two objects¹⁴ after

¹ Cf. Caix, Origini. Firenze, 1880, ¶ 91: "Come casi d'iato all'atona vanno qui considerate le forme apostrofate delle enclitiche e proclitiche e particolarmente dei pronomi personali eo, io, noi, voi, lei, e dei possessivi meo, mio, tuo, suo; onde abbiamo: e', i', no', vo', le', me', mi', tu', su'."

Also compare Fornaciari, Grammatica Italiana. Firenze 1879, p. 120:

Proclitiche: gli ed e' = egli, eglino, la = ella,
le = elleno.

² Cf. Caix, Origini, ¶ 91: "Questa ci conduce poi alle forme ei, quei, e', que', principalmente toscane, e frequenti già in Guittone e nella sua Scuola."

³ Cf. résumé, p. 39.

⁴ Cf. Caix, Origini, ¶ 207.

⁵ vo' occurs also in the oblique cases in K, pp. 27, 35, 42, 46, 61, 116; N, p. 43.

⁶ Cf. the 44 occurrences of gli in the popular writer TT by the side of the seventy-nine examples of the vulgar nominative la in the same text.

⁷ Cf. Blanc, It. Gr., p. 272: "Jetzt ist der Gebrauch der, dass ella und elleno der edleren Sprache, la und elle dem gewöhnlichen Leben, le aber für elleno nur dem Pöbel angehört."

⁸ For examples of all the atonic nominatives cited above, compare pp. 31-32.

⁹ Cf. V, I, 10: E' non vide mai nessuno compiuto.

¹⁰ Cf. DD, p. 5: I' era divenuto tanto stanco;

LL, I, 232, Padre, di me ch' i' son giunta a mal porto.

¹¹ Cf. Blanc, It. Gr., p. 95: "Auch der Apostroph ist im Italiänischen eine neuere Erfindung, die Handschriften des 14. Jahrh. kennen ihn nicht."

¹² Cf. KK, I, 407: Questa prigione, che certo innocentissimo tu hai avuta, la sarà stata la salute per sempre.

¹³ Cf. Henry, he is going to town to-morrow, a usage common among English peasants.

¹⁴ Cf. KK, II, 1: Questo capitolo lo scrivo a Luca Martini.

one verb in which the second is a pronoun inserted after the regular noun object.

b.—Atonic pronouns in hiatus¹.

The general law governing the elision or retention of the final vowel of the pronominal and adverbial particles in hiatus is that *mi*², ti, si, ne, vi, lo, la are generally elided when placed before any vowel or h, while ci loses its vowel only when standing before *i*³ or e, and it is written in full before *a*⁴, o and u. The i of *gli*⁵, singular and plural, is elided only before an initial i; and the e of *le*⁶ (the accusative feminine plural) is cut off before another e provided the context is sufficiently clear to prevent the confusion of le (the plural form) with le, the dative singular.

The rules, as given, are those generally practised from the origin of the language to the latest writers. However, there are found in the usage of certain authors striking exceptions to the laws postulated, which exceptions render necessary a comparison of the different texts studied. In the course of this examination⁷ I have noted that the elision of atonic particles was general until about the sixteenth century, from which time the proportion of non-elided forms rapidly increases, reaching the greatest percentage in VV, AAA, EEE, DDD, FFF, etc., where the use of a full or shortened form is optional⁸.

2.—In enclitic position.

a.—Origin of mi, ti, si.

With reference to the origin of the use of mi, ti, si as enclitics, D'Ovidio⁹ says: "Nulla però ci vieta di supporre che, sorti nella posizione proclitica, mi ecc. passassero quindi anche alla enclitica." While this development may ¹ The adverbs ci, ne and vi are also included in the present treatment of elision.

² Cf. m'amò; t'offendere; n'andò; v'ha amato; l'ha veduto.

³ Cf. c'insegna; c'entra.

⁴ Cf. ci amò; ci offese; ci udiva.

⁵ Cf. gl'indusse; gli amò.

⁶ Cf. lebbe trovate.

⁷ Cf. table p. 40.

⁸ Cf. examples pp. 32-33.

⁹ Archiv. Glott. It., vol. IX., p. 70.

be possible, one is led to reject it for the reason that the pronouns in hand can be explained on a purely phonetic basis.

According to a general phonetic law given by Meyer-Lübke:¹ "Dagegen wird ē zu i: fiori, ami = amēs, chimenti, Giovanni, oggi - hodie, vedi = vidē," mē, etc., regularly > mī, etc., in postonic position.

The junction of enclitic pronouns with the verbs upon which they lean is simply an orthographic representation of the sounds of oral speech; the two words being articulated together, orthography in attempting to indicate pronunciation writes the two forms as one.

3. Constructions common to proclitic and enclitic position (or partly proclitic and partly enclitic).

a.—Mixing of gender, number and person.

aa.—Masculine for feminine.

The occasional use of masculine *gli*² for the indirect feminine singular le (< P. L.³ ILLAE) is best explained as deriving directly < ILLI (= C. L. masc. and fem. dat. sing.). Since the Latin shows both ILLI and ILLAE for the feminine dative singular, it is natural that gli and le, their respective derivatives, should persist side by side until the former is supplanted by le, the Italian representative of the latter.

An apparent confusion of gender may be seen in the sporadic use of the oblique masculine singular *lo*⁴ for la, where the masculine form merely expresses some quality of the feminine noun to which it refers, but does not stand in the place of the noun in the ordinary sense of a pronoun.

Forming a striking contrast to the mixing of gender just referred to, is the strict preservation of the feminine in elliptical and indefinite constructions; such as, *vedersela, pagarla, godersela*⁵, etc., where the verb is accompanied by a pronoun without relating to anything before mentioned.

¹ It. Gr., ¶ 106.

² Cf. p. 35.

³ P. L. = Popular Latin and C. L. = Classic Latin.

⁴ Cf. BBB, p. 125: Gertrude avrebbe potuto essere una monaca santa e contenta, comunque lo fosse divenuta.

⁵ Cf. The French "vous me la donnez belle" and the Spanish "quien las sabe las tañe."

In such idiomatic expressions, although some substantive is always understood, agreeing with the sense to which the pronoun refers¹, there would seem to be a natural reason for a mixing of gender, since the omitted object to which the pronoun relates would not be kept in the mind of the average speaker and the idea of its gender would be entirely lost. The probable reason for the keeping of the feminine in such cases is that the expressions pagarla, etc., came to be a regular Italian locution and the speaker or writer adopted them as speech formulas without thinking of the gender of the omitted substantive.

bb.—Singular for the plural.

The masculine singular *lo*² is also used in referring to plural nouns in constructions where it stands in the predicate position, and expresses some attribute of a noun, just as is the case with an adjective.

cc.—si (= ci).

A very free use of the persons is the construction with si, the third person reflexive, for ci, the first person plural. This construction is found only in W³ and doubtless originated under the influence of the Lombard dialect⁴.

A further mixing of persons may be seen in the use of the adverb *vi*⁵, corresponding to the pronoun vi, for the third person dative singular and plural in constructions where it refers directly to objects or persons before mentioned⁶. This syntactical irregularity is probably a mere extension of the adverbial use of vi from the idea of place to that of persons and things. The adverb vi was already used in the sense of "there," "to that place," "to that part," etc., and by analogy to this third personal

¹ For example, in vedersela something like la questione is implied.

² Cf. ZZ, XIII, 276: Che sono tutte malvagio, e se alcuna lo è meno, il suocero e la suocera lo saranno in sua vece.

³ Cf. ur: Poi si traemo per la drita via; Ciir, Noi si trovamo giunti su lextremo; piiiir, Noi se partimo et prendemo el camino.

⁴ Cf. Francesco Rinaldo, Avvertimenti Grammaticali. Modena, 1732: "Alcuni, specialmente Lombardi, errano frequentemente si, che corrisponde al latino se, o sibi, per ci, che corrisponde a nos, o a nobis; e così dicono si partimmo, si ferammo, in luogo di ci partimmo, ci ferammo."

⁵ For the use of ci in similar constructions compare D'Ovidio, Archiv. Glott. It., p. 78; Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 371.

⁶ Cf. M, p. 74; Fece a Marco una così fatta questione, credendo che Marco non vi potesse rispondere.

signification may have arisen its occasional substitution for the dative pronouns of the third person.

b.—Uses of il, l and lo before the verb.

With reference to the position of il and lo in Dante and his contemporaries Groeber¹ says: "Es besteht vielmehr folgende Regel für den Gebrauch der zwei parallelen Artikel—und Pronominalformen in den ältesten Hdschn. der. Div. Com.: lo, li steht vor beliebigem Anlaut und hinter beliebigem Auslaut, il, i vor einfachem Consonanten und nur hinter vocalischem Auslaut." It will be noted that the rule quoted above, applies to il and lo both as articles and as pronouns. However, in consideration of the fact that il and lo as articles do not fall directly under a treatment of the same forms as pronouns, only the latter will be considered in this monograph.

ADD To determine the law governing the position of *il*² and lo involves a discussion of the word preceding and the word following them in the sentence. Now, because it is an almost universal rule in Italian that the final letter of a word must be a vowel, the former question is practically restricted to the pronominal form permitted to stand after the particles non, con, per, pur, etc. For the texts examined, only one example of *il*³ used after a final consonant has been noted, while the use of lo in this position is the regular Italian construction.

With reference to the word following il and lo the examples collected show that the use of *il*⁴ before any given word was conditioned upon the fact that such a word should begin with a single consonant, whereas the adoption of lo before a word beginning with a single consonant was also permissible, and its use before a vowel or impure s was obligatory. Now, since the only position in

¹ Zeit. für. Rom. Phil., I, p. 108.

² Statements relative to the position of il and lo always include their corresponding plurals i and gli (li); however, i as the accusative plural only occurs five times in the texts examined (O 4, I).

³ Cf. II, III, 151: Non pur il porto, ecc.

⁴ For the only examples found of il preceding a word beginning with impure s compare:

II, III, 195: Iddio ringrazia, giugnendo le braccia,

Che di tanto dolor si tosto il spoglia;

II, I, 26, Vedendo che costui si poco il stima;

LL, I, 93, Lo chiama al campo, ed alla pugna 'l sfida.

which il could stand was when the word preceding it ended in a vowel, and the word following it began with a single consonant; and, because even in this position, *il*¹ and lo were used interchangeably, the parallel uses of these two forms in the construction just mentioned have been counted with results as shown by the table². Such a résumé indicates that il was preferred for the most part in poetry and lo in prose, the former disappearing entirely from prose literature in the course of the sixteenth century and from poetry in the seventeenth century. Hence, we may conclude with the statement that Gröber's rule³ relative to the position of il and lo as pronouns was not only the usage of Dante and his contemporaries, but was the practice of Tuscan authors until the pronominal function of il was finally lost in order to differentiate between the article and pronoun by the adoption of *il*⁴ as an article and lo as a pronoun.

After personal forms of essere the conjunctive pronouns *il*⁵ and *lo*⁶ are used without variation for gender⁷ or number⁸ in the predicate sense of it, or so, for the purpose of representing the condition or quality of an adjective or noun already expressed⁹.

c.—Position of atonic pronouns with finite verbs.

Mussafia¹⁰ first announced the general principle, that in Old Italian atonic pronouns were always enclitic when depending on a finite verb standing at the beginning of the principal proposition, whether the sentence was declar-

¹ Cf. M, p. 23: Quelli lo mordea, e così il consumò.

² Cf. p. 40-41.

³ Cf. p. 48.

⁴ Cf. il giorno; io lo vidi.

⁵ Cf. WW, p. 259: Arminsi pure i Greci
Furo ingrati ad Achille, e il sieno a Pirro;
YY, X, 243, il sarete.

⁶ Cf. XX, I, 58,sarò padre
Per compiacerti, come ora lo sono
Per consigliarti.

⁷ Cf. p. 34.

⁸ Cf. p. 34.

⁹ For the same construction in French compare Whitney's French Grammar. New York, 1886, pt. II, p. 246.

¹⁰ Cf. Miscellanea di Filologia e Linguistica. Firenze, 1886, pp. 255-261.

ative¹, interrogative², imperative³, subjunctive⁴ used imperatively, an indicative⁵ preceded by a vocative, or several⁶ principal propositions succeeding one another without connectives⁷.

On the other hand, if the principal proposition did not begin with a verb, it was the rule to place the atonic particles in proclitic position⁸.

The reason for the use of enclitics with verbs standing at the beginning of the principal proposition is, according to Mussafia⁹, because the early writers did not wish to begin the principal sentence with an unaccented particle.

In the fourteenth century¹⁰ the unaccented pronouns began to disappear from enclitic position with finite verbs and with the exception of the second person singular and plural imperative and the first person plural imperative they ceased entirely to be employed in this construction about the middle of the seventeenth century.

d.—Position of atonic pronouns with infinitives.

aa.—Infinitives not dependent upon verbs.

When an infinitive is the subject¹¹ of a proposition, or depends upon a noun¹² or adjective¹³, the unaccented particles are invariably written as enclitics.

¹ Cf. vidilo for lo vidi.

² Cf. hotti io mai ingiuriato?

³ Cf. dimmi, ditemi, diciamogli.

⁴ Cf. piaciatì, rimangansene.

⁵ Cf. amico mio, pregoti, ecc.

⁶ Cf. andai da tuo fratello, diedigli la lettera, pregailo, ecc.

⁷ As an explanation of expressions like mi disse, mi rispose Mussafia (Miscellanea, p. 258) says: "In questo caso l'orazione diretta rappresenta l'oggetto del verbum dicendi; e poichè il periodo comincia da questo oggetto, cessa l'obbligo dell'enclisi."

⁸ Cf. io lo vidi; non lo vidi; non ti turbare; or mi di, donna, ecc.; non lo vedendo (or non vedendolo). Here also belong constructions where the principal proposition was connected with another preceding, the first word of the proposition co-ordinated being any conjunction except e and ma; for example, one said io l'amo; perciò lo punisco, but e riguardommi, ma sforzami, etc. In like manner, when the pronoun relative adverb, or conjunction introducing a dependent clause was expressed, the verb being no longer at the head of the proposition, took the pronoun before it; as, l'uomo che t'ama, ecc.

⁹ Cf. Miscellanea, p. 257.

¹⁰ Cf. Miscellanea, p. 257.

¹¹ Cf. U, 1, 1; Il mandarlo fuori di casa nostra così infermo ne sarebbe gran biasimo.

¹² Cf. S, p. 330: Turno ha intendimento di cacciarmi.

¹³ Cf. U, 5, 8: Io sono presto di farlo.

bb.—Infinitives depending on verbs.

When an infinitive depends upon an impersonal verb and only one atonic pronoun is expressed, this pronoun always stands before the principal verb¹, representing the one for whom the impersonal idea exists. On the contrary, if a second pronoun² is introduced, it is written in conjunction with the infinitive.

In all constructions where an infinitive is dependent upon a verb of *making*³, causing, *seeing*⁴, hearing, permitting, letting the conjunctive pronoun is placed before the independent verb, while it is always attached to the infinitive itself when the infinitive is governed by any transitive verb⁵, except those just mentioned.

When an infinitive depends directly upon an intransitive verb, the atonic pronoun may be placed either before the main verb⁶ or united with the infinitive⁷, the two constructions being employed side by side (without apparent distinction) from the earliest texts to the present time.

If the preposition *di*⁸ or per stands between the dependent infinitive and the governing verb, the atonic pronoun is always attached to the infinitive.

On the other hand, if the preposition *a*⁹ precedes the infinitive, the conjunctive pronoun may go either with the principal verb or with the infinitive.

e.—Reflexives.

When the same person is both subject and object of a verb, the pronoun on which falls the action of the verb has a reflexive sense. For this purpose are used mi, ti,

¹ Cf. B, p. 139 : Ma ti conven partire ;
U, 1, 2, mi pareva havere impiegata, ecc.

² Cf. U, 2, 7 : Mi piace di raccontarli.

³ Cf. Inf. II, 70 : Io son Beatrice che ti faccio andare.

⁴ Cf. Inf. I, 92 : A te conven tenere altro viaggio.
Rispose, poi che lagrimar mi vide.

⁵ Cf. U, 9, 5 : Credesse bene accenderlo ;
Y, p. 94 : pensa volerlo onorare ;
P, I, 234 : spero vederlo oggi ;

⁶ Cf. U, 2, 3 : Io ti posso menare.

⁷ Cf. LL, I, 98 : O che non puoi saperlo, o non schivarli.

⁸ Cf. S, p. 291 : Desideriava di darla.

⁹ Cf. Y, p. 58 : La donna lo incominciò a pregare ;
KK, II, 380 lo venne a vedere ;
V, I, 76 : volle andare a vederlo ;
Y, p. 139 : e' cominciò a pregarla.

*ci, vi, si*¹, the plurals also being employed as reciprocals, meaning "each other," "one another," etc.

f.—Dative constructions.

aa.—Dative with verbs.

In Italian just as in Latin, the case of an indirect object denotes the person to or for which something exists or is done, designating the one affected or interested, and generally implying advantage or disadvantage.

Some of the principal verbs governing the dative case in Italian are:

1. Verbs of remembering², threatening³, persuading, dissuading⁴, conquering⁵, pardoning⁶.

2. All impersonal verbs⁷.

3. In Italian as in Latin verbs accompanied by *satis*⁸, *bene*⁹, *male*¹⁰ take the dative; bene and male being written apart from the verb in Italian, while in Latin the three forms were united with the verb (cf. satisfacere, benefacere, malefacere).

4. Verbs used with the prepositions *davante*¹¹, avanti, innanzi, dietro, *appresso*¹², dirempetto, *incontro*¹³, attorno, *sotto*¹⁴, sopra, dinanzi, etc., the preposition and verb being written separately in Italian but corresponding to the Latin dative after verbs compounded with ante, post, prae, sub, super, etc.

¹ The reflexive si must not be confounded with the particle si used as the sign of the passive signification of the verb or si meaning "one," "people," "they," etc.; as, si racconta; si scrive.

² Cf. P, I, 44: Di chiamarmi a se non le ricorda;

LL, II, 47, Di Bradamante più non gli sovviene.

³ Cf. LL, III, 123: E' gli minaccia, ecc.

⁴ Cf. LL, V, 96; Molto gli dissuase Malagigi.

⁵ Cf. LL, V, 260: A Costantin del quale era sorella Costei si gittò a' piedi, e gli conquise.

⁶ Cf. LL, IV, 4: non gli perdono.

⁷ Cf. parere, sembrare, bastare, dolere, valere, piacere, dispiacere, nocere, premere, convenire, degnare, mancare, cadere, calere, costare, gravare, giovare.

⁸ Cf. LL, IV, 274: Di questo Ferrai le satisfece.

⁹ Cf. V, I, 13: Che tu le voglia bene.

¹⁰ Cf. V, I, 142: Mi vuol male.

¹¹ Cf. LL, II, 125: Ma la maga gentil le va davante.

¹² Cf. LL, II, 78: Ruggier, gli e appresso....

¹³ Cf. V, II, 208: Gli venne incontra.

¹⁴ Cf. NN, I, 12: Il destrier sotto gli cade.

5. Transitive verbs governing the accusative and dative¹ case, when, together with the object of the action there is expressed the person or thing to or for which it is done.

bb.—Indirect object after adjectives.

Following the Latin construction, the Italian designates the object to which the quality of an adjective is directed by the use of the dative².

cc.—Dative of the possessor.

The verb essere is construed with a pronoun in the case of indirect object denoting the possessor. This usage is a pure Latinism and is limited to the authors indicated by DD³, TT⁴, WW⁵, AAA⁶.

dd.—Possessive strengthened by the dative

In Italian this construction is represented in three ways :

1. Both the dative and possessive pronoun are expressed⁷;

2. When parts of the body are referred to, the masculine or feminine definite article⁸ is substituted for the possessive ;

3. In certain idiomatic phrases where the sense is sufficiently clear the possessive pronoun and article are both omitted⁹.

This strengthening of the possessive idea by the addition of the dative personal pronoun arose first in (Popular) Latin, according to the statement of the Latin grammarian

¹ Cf. V, I, 204 : Le domandò chi ella era ;
— V, I, 130, glie lo mostro.

² Cf. A, p. 93r : Ed io più le starò sempre obbiente.

³ Cf. p. 134 : Più gli era io servidore.

⁴ Cf. p. 104 : Io gli son pur amico.

⁵ Cf. p. 260 : Gli sarò padre.

⁶ Cf. I, 146 : Padre ti sono.

⁷ Cf. M, p. 40 : Poi li tolse il suo barlione ;
AA, p. 28, Se natura mi presta uom felice, Subito morte gli usa il suo uffizio.

⁸ Cf. C, p. 49v : E gli ha spogliato il doloroso core ;
H, p. 195, lo Cardinale si levò lo capello ;
Z, nov. 4, raderòmmi la barba.

⁹ Cf. I, p. 23 : Una lettera gli fue posta in mano ;
K, p. 3, si vide una colomba che li uscì di bocca.

Schmalz¹, who says: "Die Verstärkung des Poss. durch den Dat. des Pron. pers., Z. B. meus mihi, tuus tibi; Plaut. Cap. 50 suo sibi servit patri. Wir finden dies bei Plaut. Ter., kaum wohl bei Cicero (vgl. Seyffert-Müller z. Lael. 11), höchstens Phil. 2, 96 priusquam tu surum sibi venderes, in Prosa demnach zuerst bei Vitruv 207, 18 R. dann bei Petron. 66 und Colum. 12, 41, 3, dann erst wieder bei den Archaisten und im Sp. L. bis in die späteste Zeit herab, vgl. Rönsch, Semas. Beitr. II, p. 52."

ee.—Dative of the agent.

Passive verbs take a dative of the agent² when it is desired to designate the person by whom the action is affected, to whom it relates or is of interest.

g.—Atonic pronouns of address.

The most common form of address in Old Italian was that by the use of the Latin tu. This form was employed from the beginning in prayer, personification, familiar discourse, address to children, servants, and lower animals, and was later used by Dante and others as a special term of dearness, displeasure and anger.

In the earliest Italian texts tu is already supplemented by voi used for the most part in addressing popes, kings, emperors, and other personages of distinction. The origin of the adoption of this plural form in addressing one individual belongs to Latin³, appearing for the first time in the works of Jornandes⁴, the historian of the Goths, who wrote about the middle of the sixth century.

Toward the end of the ninth century the plural was frequently used when speaking to kings and emperors, as

¹ Cf. Müller's Handbuch der Klassischen Altertums-Wissenschaft, München, 1890, vol. II., p. 573.

² Cf. F., p. 6: Dei dire chosa che ti sia creduta;
P, I, 226; Di quest'altr'io: ed o pur non molesto
Gli sia 'l mio ingegno, e'l mio lodar non spezze.

³ Cf. Grimm, Deutsche Grammatik. Göttingen, 1837, vol. IV., p. 300.

⁴ Cf. "De Origine Actibusque Getarum." (In) Monumenta Germaniae Historica, Berolini, 1882, vol. V. Chap. 57: Secumque deliberans ad principem ait: quamvis nihil deest nobis imperio vestro famulantibus, tamen, si dignum ducit pietas vestra, desiderium cordis libenter exaudiat. Ibid., dirige me cum gente mea, si praecepis, ut et hic expensarum pondere careas et ibi, si adiutus a domino vicero, fama vestrae pietatis inradiet expedit namque, ut ego, qui sum servus vester et filius, si vicero, vobis domantibus regnum illud possideam.

is seen in "Gesta Karoli¹," where King Charles is usually entitled vos.

The explanation of the use of the plural vos for the singular tu is a difficult one. However, a suggestion that might account for it, is that it may have arisen by analogy to the use of vos, referring to collective² nouns or in addressing one individual of a class³. The carrying of the plural pronoun from constructions where it refers to a singular noun, expressing a collective or clan idea, to a singular noun applied to only one person is not an unnatural growth in popular speech. While the educated would use the plural form in the cases just indicated with the different individuals composing the class or collection of persons in mind, the peasant, knowing nothing of grammar, would naturally think of a collective noun as a single thing.

Then, because vos was already adopted in referring to certain nouns in the singular, but denoting a collection of persons the average speaker could see no reason why the same form should not stand for other singular nouns as well.

Perhaps a still more plausible analogy is that furnished by the first person plural. In the development of this construction, as in that of the second person plural, the first use of nos referring to one individual was doubtless in a collective sense. Just as vos was first employed in speaking to one man representing a body of persons, so was nos first used by Latin kings, emperors and princes in their official documents referring to the writer as the agent or representative of the people. Now, for the reason that the use of *nos*⁴ for ego was already common among kings and emperors, when addressing the people, by analogy to this construction the subjects may have been led to adopt the plural vos in replying to their rulers.

¹ Cf. Monumenta Germaniae Historica. Hannoverae, 1829, vol. II., p. 733: Dixerunt: Domine, ut nos in vestro nomine supra medioeritatem nostram honoraret; p. 749, omnes dixerunt ad regem: Domine, ita estis inhonorati, sicut numquam anteriores vestri.

² Cf. Virgil, Ae. IX, 525: Vos, o Calliope, precor adspirare canenti; Liv. 7, 40, Vos, Romanus exercitus; Hor, A. P., 292, Vos, o Pompilius Sanguis, carmen reprehendite.

³ Cf. Silvius Italicus 16, 211: Et vos, qui Tyriae regitis Carthaginis arces, Hasdrubal, huc aures, huc quaeſo advertite sensus;

Cic. pro. Diot. 10, Vos vestra secunda fortuna, Castor, non potestis sine propinquorum calamitate esse contenti?

⁴ Cf. Grimm, Deutsche Grammatik. Göttingen, 1837, vol. IV., p. 299.

That the line of distinction between tu and voi had not, however, been clearly drawn, even at the beginning of the Italian period, is evidenced by the occasional confusion of the two forms in addressing the same person¹.

With reference to the use of abstract substantives as a form of address, Schmalz² says: "Schon Liv. lässt ihn in kühneren Wendungen zu, mehr noch Vell. Val. Max. Tac. u. Plin. min., und so entwickelt sich hieraus die offizielle Titulatur, Z. B. Vestra serenitas, etc. Vgl. Schöner, in act. sem. Erlang. II., p. 490 ff. Hierin leistete das konstantinische Zeitalter das Mögliche; ja die christl. Kirche eroberte sich nunmehr eine Titulatur, und sanctitus tua ist seit Ende IV. saec. stehende Anrede der Bischöfe.' Growing directly out of constructions where the abstract nouns above indicated were employed in address, is the substitution of ella, etc., for voi, etc. Instead of repeating the substantives Santità, Eccellenza, Signoria, etc., the speaker or writer used the third person feminine, *ella*³ (corresponding to the gender of the omitted noun), for the same reason that one employs a pronoun instead of a noun in any other case.

On the date of the introduction of ella as the polite form of address in Italian, Blanc⁴ remarks: "Erst mit dem 16. Jahrhundert fängt eine dritte, jetzt allgemein übliche Anrede durch ella an." Proving the incorrectness of this statement and showing that ella was used in such constructions at least two centuries before the time given by the grammarian just quoted is the occurrence of le (dat. of ella) in V⁵, a novelist of the fourteenth century.

Ella was first employed only in addressing popes, to which signification it was restricted until toward the end of the sixteenth century, when its use was widened to include not only popes, but kings, emperors, princes and

¹ Cf. K, p. 76: Con Dio v'accordarete, e vollio che tue te n'accordi con missere Jesù Cristo; p. 82, amico mio, vollio che sappi che tu diei essere molto lieto, quando lo nostro Signore vi manda del vostro peccato alleggerimento.

² Cf. Müller's Handbuch München, 1890, vol. II., p. 535 d.

³ Cf. KK, I, 156: Ora io sono qui a' piedi di Vostra Santità, la quale e vero confessare, ch'ella faccia tanto di grazia di darmi licenza, acciocchè mi possa confessare.

⁴ Cf. It. Gr., p. 273.

⁵ Vol. I., p. 211: Et ella presentandosi davanti al Papa, gli disse Beatissimo Padre, Vostra Santità sa che io mai non le ho voluto manifestare di chi sieno nati questi figliuoli, ne ch'io mi sia.

other persons of eminence, being adopted still later as the usual address to ladies and as a mark of respect in general. At the beginning of the nineteenth century lei, the popular form for ella, was introduced into the literary language, and is the address most frequently heard in the popular speech of Tuscany to-day.

D.—Discussion of double atonics.

1.—Arrangement.

When a pronoun of the first or second person stands next to the third personal forms lo, etc., and la, etc., the general rule obtains for the whole of the texts examined that the indirect object precedes the direct¹. However, in Old Italian, before the laws of position were definitely established, the direct object was often placed before the indirect².

Now, if the construction me lo dice is the regular Italian arrangement, how is the exception lo mi dice to be explained? Since in Latin, just as in Italian, the general law governing the position of the combinations under discussion was, that the indirect³ should precede the direct object, while the opposite construction, with the direct⁴ object coming first, was also permissible and not an infrequent usage with certain Latin authors, the most reasonable suggestion seems to be, that both constructions are a mere continuation of the Latin word-order. The final disappearance of constructions like il vi dirò, and the universal adoption of ve lo dirò, etc., instead may be attributed, first, to the numerical superiority of the latter word-arrangement over the former in Latin; and, secondly, to the general tendency in Italian to place the demonstrative forms after mi and ti, the conversion of lo ti, etc., > te lo, etc., arising not because the Italian preferred the dative before the accusative, but from a desire to place the pronouns of the first and second persons before those of the third person.

With reference to the arrangement of double forms,

¹ Cf. U, 2, 5: Io te l'vo dire.

² Cf. U, 1, 1: Io il vi dirò.

³ Cf. Terence, Eunuchus, 1053: Mihi illam laudas?
897, Tibi illam reddat.....?

⁴ Cf. Terence, Eunuchus, 749: Hanc tibi do donò;
Andrea, 675 Ego, Pamphile, hoc tibi pro servitio debeo.

old ital
Add

Copy ad

Add

neither of which is lo, etc., or la, etc., the following statements may be made:

1. That mi and ci precede ti and vi;
2. That mi, ci, ti, vi precede the reflexive *si*¹;
3. That the partitive ne follows all the other forms given (Nos. 1 and 2).

CONCLUSIONS.

As a résumé of the discussion upon the uses of atonic forms in atonic position the following conclusions may be drawn:

1. That of the nominatives i', i, no', vo', e', gli, la, l', le, found in proclitic position in the texts consulted, i', i and e' are Tuscan, while the other forms mentioned are dialectical or popular.

2. That the general law governing the elision of atonic vowels in hiatus in both Old and Modern Italian is, that mi, ti, si, vi, lo, la lose their vowel before any word beginning with a vowel or h, as contrasted with gli and the feminine plural le, which are elided only before similar vowels (gli before i and le before e), and the first person plural ci, which elides its i before e or i but keeps it before a, o and u. Up to the sixteenth century the proportion of exceptions to the rules above given, was less than 3%, while the increase of non-elided forms since that period has been so marked that with the present writers of Italy the use of a long or shortened form seems to be optional.

3. That me, te, se > mi, ti, si in enclitic position according to the general law that postonic \bar{e} > i^2 , and that all enclitic pronouns were written in conjunction with the verb upon which they cast their accent, as a result of the general tendency manifest in orthography to represent faithfully the sounds of oral speech.

4. That, in Old Italian, gli was sometimes confused with the indirect feminine singular le on account of a tendency to preserve both Classic Latin ILLI (= masc. and fem. dat. sing.) and Popular Latin ILLAE (= fem. dat. sing.).

5. That, after personal forms of essere, il and lo are used for both genders and numbers in the sense of "it" or "so" when referring to some attribute or quality of a noun or adjective preceding.

¹ Si precedes the demonstrative forms lo and la (cf. selo, etc.).

² Cf. Meyer-Lübke, It. Gr., ¶ 106.

6. That, idiomatic expressions like vederla, pagarla, prenderla are to be explained as speech formulas in which the feminine pronoun first arose when the feminine substantive to which it referred was either expressed or kept in mind, and that later, when the noun was entirely lost, the feminine pronoun was still preserved, because the expression had become a regular Italian locution, and was employed without thought of the gender.

7. That the dialectical use of ci and vi for the indirect singular and plural of third personal forms arose by analogy to the idea of a third person contained in the adverbs ci and vi, meaning "to it," "to them," etc., but not referring to anything before mentioned. Also that the further mixing of persons as seen in the occurrences of si for ci in W (cf. p. 47) is a borrowing from the Lombard dialect.

8. That Gröber's rule for the position of il and lo before the verb in Dante and his contemporaries; namely, that il and i could follow any word ending in a vowel and precede any word beginning with a single consonant, while lo and gli (li) could follow any final letter and precede any initial letter, was the usage of Tuscan writers until the final disappearance of il (cf. p. 49). } e

9. That until the fourteenth¹ century atonic pronouns were attached to all forms of finite verbs standing at the beginning of the principal proposition, as a result of the fact that the early writers did not wish to begin the principal sentence with an unaccented particle².

10. That, when an atonic pronoun is governed by an infinitive, the former is joined as an enclitic to the latter, if the infinitive is the subject of a sentence, dependent upon a noun or adjective, or, if it depends upon a verb with the preposition di or per standing between the independent verb and the infinitive. However, if the infinitive depends upon a verb of making, causing, seeing, hearing, feeling, letting, permitting, the unaccented particles always stand in proclitic position, while they are attached to the infinitive when the latter follows immediately after and leans upon any other transitive verb except those just mentioned. Also, if the preposition a intervenes between the use for some

¹ The first and second person imperative including the imperative use of ecco have retained the atonic pronouns in enclitic position because the force of command requires that the most important word shall stand first.

² Atonics were also occasionally attached to dietro, addosso, dretto, che.

principal verb and the dependent infinitive, or if the infinitive depends upon any intransitive verb, the placing of the atonic form in proclitic or enclitic position is optional.

11. That the Latin dative of the possessor, the possessive strengthened by the dative, the dative of the agent and the dative of interest, with the general idea of advantage and disadvantage, have been preserved in Italian.

12. That Latin tu has persisted in Italian as a term of endearment, displeasure, anger, hatred and inferiority, being employed most commonly in speaking to children, lower animals, and in supplicating the Deity.

With Jornandes in the middle of the sixth century begins the use of vos in addressing one person, being first applied only to emperors and kings, but later used as a title of respect in general.

In the fourteenth century ella was first adopted in supplicating popes, when referring back to the abstract substantive Santità, and toward the end of the sixteenth century its use was also extended to princes, nobles and others of similar rank, gradually supplanting voi, which latter form has been restricted to the address to the reader in books, address toward equals with whom one is on very familiar terms, or toward servants.

From the beginning of the eighteenth century dates the substitution of the popular form lei for the regular feminine nominative ella, the latter remaining, however, as the polite form of address in written speech, while the former belongs to the language of conversation.

13. That, when a pronoun of the first or second person is placed next to the third personal forms lo, etc., la, etc., the general rule is that the indirect object stands first. However, in Old Italian this rule was often reversed and the direct was made to precede the indirect object. Both of these constructions are directly traceable to the Latin (cf. p. 57), which generally shows the indirect object first, in combinations as above indicated, but not infrequent is the opposite usage, where the direct precedes the indirect object.

14. That in all other combinations of two atonics the first person always precedes the second and the first and second persons stand before the reflexive *si*¹.

¹ Si precedes the forms lo and la while ne follows all the other pronouns mentioned.

BIBLIOGRAPHY¹.

I.—TEXTS EXAMINED.

The following texts constitute the bibliography of this dissertation; they include the works of representative Tuscan authors from the middle of the thirteenth to the end of the nineteenth century. Throughout this monograph reference to the authors will be given by the use of the capital letters A, B, C, etc., standing opposite their names.

- A.—Guittone d'Arezzo: (In) Sonetti e Canzoni di Diversi Antichi Autori Toscani in Dieci Libri Raccolte. Firenze, 1527.
- B.—Chiaro Davanzati: (In) Collezione di Opere inedite o rare. III, 1-177; 261-265; 387-389.
- C.—Cino da Pistoja: In A, pp. 47-60, 133, 134, 136, 137.
- D.—Riccomano Jacopi: Libro della Tavola di Ric. Jac., edited by Carlo Vesme (in) Archivio Storico Italiano, 3^a serie, vol. XVIII. (1873).
- E.—Dante da Maiono: In A, pp. 72-88, 133, 137, 139, 140.
- F.—Albertano di Brescia: Volgarizzamento dei Trattati Morali di Albertano Giudice di Brescia. Fatto innanzi al 1278. Trovato da S. Ciampi. Firenze, 1832.
- G.—Ricordi di una Famiglia Senese del secolo decimoterzo (1231-1243). Pub. by G. Milanese in Archiv. Stor. Ital., Appendice, Vol. V. Firenze, 1847.
- H.—Ranieri Sardo: Cronaca Pisana di Ran. Sar., Dall. Anno 962 sino al 1400. Pub. by F. Bonaini in Archiv. Stor. Ital., Vol. VI., parte 2^a, pp. 73-244. Firenze, 1845.
- I.—Fiore di filosofi e di molti savi, attribuito a Brunetto Latini. Testo in parte inedito, citato dalla Crusca, e ridotto a miglior lezione da Antonio Cappelli: (In) Scelta di curiosità letterarie o rare, Vol. LXIII. Bologna, 1865.

¹ As the most of the grammatical and syntactical changes in the Italian language took place before the sixteenth century, fewer texts have been examined for the Modern than for the Old Italian.

- J.—Lettere Volgari del secolo XIII, scritte da Senesi. Pub. by Paoli e Piccolomini in Scelta, ecc., CXVI. Bologna, 1871.
- K.—Dodici Conti morali d'Anonimo Senese. Testo inedito del secolo XIII, pubb. da Zambrini. Scelta, ecc., IX. Bologna, 1862.
- L.—Conti di Antichi Cavalieri: (In) Giornale Storico della Letteratura Italiana, Vol. III., pp. 192-217. Torino, 1884.
- M.—Le cento Novelle Antiche. Milano, 1825.
- N.—Guido Cavalcanti: Le Rime di Guid. Cav. Testo critico pubb. dal Prof. Nicola Arnone. Firenze, 1881. Also in A.
- O.—Dante: La Divina Commedia di Dante Alighieri, edited by G. A. Scartazzini, Milano, 1896.
- P.—Petrarca: Rime di Pet. 2 vols. Padova, 1819.
- Q.—Jacopo di Pistoja: Statuti dell'Opera di S. Jacopo di Pistoja, volgarizzati l'anno MCCCXIII da Mazzeo di Ser Giovanni Bellebuoni, con due inventari del 1340 e del 1401. Pubbl. da S. Ciampi. Pisa, 1814.
- R.—Bindo Bonichi: Rime di Bind. Bon. da Siena. Scelta, ecc., LXXXII. Bologna, 1867.
- S.—Guido da Pisa: Fiore di Italia. Bologna, 1824.
- T.—Ricordi di Miliadusso Baldicciono de' Casalberti. Pubbl. da Bonaini e Polidori in Archiv. Stor. Ital., Appendice, Vol. VIII., pp. 17-71. (First record 1339, last 1382.) Firenze, 1850.
- U.—Boccaccio: Il decamerone. Impresso in Firenze per li heredi di Philipppo di Giunta nell'anno del Signore, M. D. XXVII. A di XIII del mese d'aprile.
- V.—Giovanni Fiorentino: Il Pecorone. 2 vols. Milano, 1804.
- W.—Fazio degli Uberti: Opera di Faccio Degliuberti Fiorentino Chiamato Ditta Mundi. Venetia, 1501.

- X.—Forestani: Storia d'una Fanciulla Tradita da un suo Amante. Di Messer Simone Forestani da Siena. Ed. da Zambrini. Scelta, ecc., VI. Bologna, 1862.
- Y.—Sercambi: Novelle di Giovanni Sercambi. Ed. da Alessandro d'Ancona. Scelta, ecc., CXIX. Bologna, 1871.
- Z.—Sacchetti: Novelle. 3 vols. Milano, 1804.
- AA.—Zenone da Pistoja: La Pietosa Fonte. Ed. da Zambrini. Scelta, ecc., CXXXVII. Bologna, 1874.
- BB.—I Cantari di Carduino; giuntovi quello di Tristano e Lancielotto. Pubbl. per cura di Pio Rajna. Scelta, ecc., CXXXV. Bologna, 1873.
- CC.—Leon Battista Alberto: Hecatompila di Messer L. B. Alb. Vineggia, 1534.
- DD.—Gambino d'Arezzo: Versi. Ed. da Gamurrini. Scelta, ecc., CLXIV. Bologna, 1878.
- EE.—Poliziano: Stanze, l'Orfeo ed altre Poesie. Milano, 1808.
- FF.—Burchiello: (In) I Sonetti del Burchiello et di Messer Antonio Alamanni. Firenze, 1552.
- GG.—Lorenzo de'Medici: Poesie. Firenze, 1859.
- HH.—Hieronimo Benivieni: Tancredi, Principe di Salerno. Novella in rima di H. Beniv. Fiorentino. Ed. da Zambrini. Scelta, ecc., XXVIII. Bologna, 1865.
- II.—Bojardo: Orlando Innamorato (Berni's Rifacimento). 4 vols. Milano, 1806.
- JJ.—Antonio Alamanni: Sonetti di Messer Ant. Alamanni Cittadino Fiorentino. In FF, pp. 72-83.
- KK.—Benvenuto Cellini: Opere. Milano, 1806. Vols. I., II., Vita di Ben. Cel. da lui medesimo scritta.
- LL.—Ariosto: Orlando Furioso. 5 vols. Milano, 1812.
- MM.—Machiavelli: Opere. Milano, 1804. Vol. I., Il Principe.
- NN.—Pietro Bembo: Opere. Milano, 1808. Vol. I., Gli Asolani.

- OO.—Torquato Tasso: Aminta. Parigi, 1655.
- PP.—Batecchio, Commedia di Maggio. Composto per il Pellegrino Ingegno del Fumoso della Congrega de' Rozzi. Scelta, ecc., CXXII. Bologna, 1871.
- QQ.—Guarini: Il Pastor Fido. Venetia, 1602.
- RR.—Giulio Ottonelli: Negoziazione alla Corte di Spagna. Scelta, ecc., XXVII. Bologna, 1863.
- SS.—Guido Ubaldo Bonarelli: Filli di Sciro. Pub. by Baldini. Ferrara, 1607.
- TT.—Michelagnolo Buonarroti (il giovane): La Tancia, Commedia Rusticale. (In) Teatro Italiano Antico. Vol. X. Milano, 1812.
- UU.—Alessandro Tassoni: La Secchia Rapita. 2 vols. Parigi, 1766.
- VV.—Fantozzi Parma: Diario del Viaggio Fatto in Inghilterra nel 1639 dal Nunzio Pontificio Rossetti, scritto da Domenico Fantozzi. Parma. Pubb. dal Prof. Giuseppe Ferraro, (in) Scelta, ecc., CCXII. Bologna, 1885.
- WW.—Apostolo Zeno: Andromaca. (In) Teatro Classico Italiano Antico e Moderno, vol. III., pp. 255-269. Lipsia, 1829.
- XX.—Scipione Maffei: Merope. Boston, 1890. Pub. by Librairie Hachette et Cie., London, Paris, Boston.
- YY.—Carlo Goldoni: Collezione delle Commedie di Carlo Goldoni. Prato, 1827-29. Vol. I., pp. 1-75, Teatro Comico, vol. X., pp. 239-327, Il Torquato Tasso.
- ZZ.—Pietro Metastasio: Opere. Firenze, 1819. Vol. I., pp. 1-84, Didone Abbandonata; Vol. XIII.
- AAA.—Vittorio Alfieri: (1) Opere scelte. Milano, 1818. Vol. I., pp. 118-176, Antigone.—(2) Opere di Vitt. Alfieri. Padova, 1809. Vol. VI., pp. 1-94, Saul.
- BBB.—Alessandro Manzoni: I promessi Sposi, Storia Milanese del Secolo XVII. (In) Collezione de' migliori Autori Italiani Antichi e Moderni, Vol. I. Pub. by Baudry. Parigi, 1844.

CCC.—Leopardi: Paralipomeni della Batracomiomachia. Parigi, 1842.

DDD.—Edmondo De Amicis: La Vita Militare. Firenze, 1869.

EEE.—Matilde Serao: Dal Vero. Milano, 1890.

FFF.—Giosuè Carducci: (1) Odi Barbare. Bologna, 1888.
—(2) Studi Letterari. Bologna, 1893.

2.—GENERAL.

1.—Meyer-Lübke: Italienische Grammatik. Leipzig, 1890.

2.—Meyer-Lübke: Grammaire des Langues Romanes. Paris, 1890.

3.—Archivio Glottologico Italiano. G. I. Ascoli.

4.—Zeitschrift für Romanische Philologie. Gustav Gröber, Halle.

5.—C. N. Caix: Origini della Lingua Poetica Italiana. Firenze, 1880.

6.—Blanc: Grammatik der Italiänischen Sprache. Halle, 1844.

7.—Monaci: Crestomazia Italiana dei Primi Secoli. Città di Castello, 1889.

8.—Louis Emil Menger: Historical Development of the Possessive Pronouns in Italian. Baltimore, 1893.

9.—Francesco Fortunio: Regole Grammaticali, della Volgar Lingua. Siena, 1533.

10.—Jacopo Gabriello: Regole Grammaticali. Venetia, 1548.

11.—Biagoli: Grammaire Italienne. Paris, 1819.

12.—Veneroni: Le Maître Italien. Paris, 1796.

13.—Mugnozzi: Les Elémens de la Langue Italienne. Paris, 1783.

14.—Fornaciari: Grammatica Italiana. Firenze, 1891.

- 15.—Jacomio Cabriele: Regole Grammaticali. Venetia, 1545.
 - 16.—Caix: Osservazioni sul Vocalismo Italiano. Firenze, 1875.
 - 17.—Francesco Rinaldo: Avvertimenti Grammaticali. Modena, 1732.
 - 18.—A. Mussafia: (In) Miscellanea di Filologia e Linguistica. Firenze, 1886.
 - 19.—Grimm: Deutsche Grammatik. Göttingen, 1837.
 - 20.—Etienne: Grammaire de l'Ancien Français. Paris, 1895.
 - 21.—Müller: Handbuch der Klassischen Altertums-Wissenschaft, 1890.
 - 22.—Jornandes: Romana et Getica, (In) Monumenta Germaniae Historica, vol. V. Berolini, 1882.
 - 23.—Schwan: Grammatik des Altfranzösischen. Leipzig, 1893.
 - 24.—Karl Bartsch: Chrestomathie Provençale. Elberfeld, 1868.
-

LIFE.

I, Oliver Martin Johnston, was born near Bastrop, Louisiana, October 17, 1866. I was graduated from Mississippi College with the degree of A.B. in June, 1890; the following year I was Principal of the Preparatory Department in the college above mentioned; the two succeeding years I held the professorship of English and History in the same college. Resigning the latter position in June, 1893, I entered the Johns Hopkins University in October of the same year, choosing Italian and French as my principal and first subordinate subjects, in which I followed the courses given by Professor A. Marshall Elliott, Doctor Louis Emil Menger, and Professor A. Rambeau. As a second subordinate subject I studied History under Professor H. B. Adams, my examination in this subject being on the Renaissance in Italy. The summer of 1894 I spent in Paris, engaged in Modern French studies and in the preparation of my thesis. From May to August of 1895 I continued in Paris my Modern French studies and the collection of material for my thesis; from August to October of this year I spent in Florence, Italy, doing special work in Modern Italian. During the last two years of my course I have followed the lectures of Professor Elliott and Doctor Menger, and I take this opportunity to express to both of them my appreciation of the able instruction, timely suggestions and wise guidance which they have so constantly given me in my work.

From January to June of 1895 I held a Scholarship in the Romance Department of the Johns Hopkins University, and since June, 1895, I have held a Fellowship in this university.

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND,
May 5, 1896.

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY
